The Time In Between Maria Duenas,2012-07-10 The Time In Between follows the story of a seamstress who becomes the most sought-after couturiere during the Spanish Civil War and World War II--Provided by publisher.

Africa in the Contemporary Spanish Novel, 1990-2010 Mahan L. Ellison,2021-08-19 The time period of 1990-2010 marks a significant moment in Spanish literary publishing that emphasized a new focus on Africa and African voices and signaled the beginning of a publishing boom of Hispano-African authors and themes. Africa in the Contemporary Spanish Novel, 1990-2010 analyzes the strategies that Spanish and Hispano-African authors employ when writing about Africa in the contemporary Spanish novel. Focusing on the former Spanish colonial territories of Morocco, Western Sahara, and Equatorial Guinea, Mahan L. Ellison analyzes the post-colonial literary discourse about these regions at the turn of the twenty-first century. He examines the new ways of conceptualizing Africa that depart from an Orientalist framework as advanced by novelists such as Lorenzo Silva, Concha López Sarasúa, Ramón Mayrata, and others. Throughout, Ellison also places the novels within their historical context, specifically engaging with the theoretical ideas of Edward Said's Orientalism (1978), to determine to what extent his analysis of Orientalist discourse still holds value for a study of the Spanish novel of thirty years later.

The Physiology of the Novel Nicholas Dames,2007-09-27 How did the Victorians read novels? Nicholas Dames answers that deceptively simple question by revealing a now-forgotten range of nineteenth-century theories of the novel, a range based in a study of human physiology during the act of reading. He demonstrates the ways in which the Victorians thought they read, and uncovers surprising responses to the question of what might have transpired in the minds and bodies of readers of Victorian fiction. His detailed studies of novelcritics who were also interested in neurological science, combined with readings of novels by Thackeray, Eliot, Meredith, and Gissing, propose a vision of the Victorian novel-reader as far from the quietly immersed being we now imagine - as instead a reader whose nervous system was addressed, attacked, and soothed by authors newly aware of the neural operations of their public. Rich in unexpected intersections, from the British response to Wagnerian opera to the birth of speed-reading in the late nineteenth century, The Physiology of the Novel challenges our assumptions about what novel-reading once did, and still does, to the individual reader, and provides new answers to the question of how novels influenced a culture's way of reading, responding, and feeling.

A Time Between Shirley Streshinsky,2013-08-12 Ambitious and determined, Hallie Duer craves to be at the center of her epoch—with Prohibition and bootleg gin, Model Ts and moving pictures, Red roundups and the routine lynching of Negroes. The old order is in upheaval, and the emerging new order is at last allowing extraordinary women their long-deserved place in the sun. In this uncommon love story, Hallie, a consummate observer by profession, learns to become a passionate participant when she falls in love with a dynamic Irish lawyer, who is married but separated from his wife. The course of their involvement is complicated by Catholic convention and a secret from the past. Cool-headed, self-possessed Hallie experiences an all-consuming love, but pain, disappointment, and forgiveness are part of that passion.

Interplay Between Chronic Pain and Affective-Cognitive Alterations: Shared Neural Mechanisms, Circuits, and Treatment Luca Posa,Danilo De Gregorio,Serena Boccella ,Kelly Smart,2025-05-29 Pain is a multidimensional experience involving physical and negative emotional components. Chronic pain, clinically defined as lasting at least 3 months, is a subjective perceptive experience involving affective and cognitive processing rather than a purely sensory phenomenon. Patients suffering from persistent pain also experience negative emotions and decreased motivation. Cognition is also required in the elaboration of the emotional component of pain and several cortical and limbic regions are involved in perception, processing, and pain modulation. Some critical elements of cognition including memory and attention are unbalanced in patients suffering from chronic pain. Nevertheless, mood disorders including depression but also anxiety disorders show psychological comorbidity in chronic pain populations. Over the last few years, critical circuits and signaling pathways underlying the affective and cognitive component of pain emerged, and novel targets have been identified for the development of treatment. The scope of this research topic is to provide recent advances in the neural basis of emotional aspects of chronic pain. The goal of this special issue is to collect research articles and reviews covering the last findings on the modulation of pain by cognitive and emotional states and on the mechanism by which chronic pain alters brain circuitry and, ultimately, to update the scientific and clinical community on recent findings in this field. The research topic welcomes submissions from both academic and industry researchers. All submissions should focus on the molecular mechanisms, neuronal circuits, and therapeutics targeting the mechanisms underlying the cognitive and/or affective components in chronic pain conditions. This article collection aims to include publications as original research and review articles on the following, but not limited, topics: 1) Basic, translational or clinical studies identifying the neurochemical basis at molecular, cellular or circuit level of cognitive and emotional modulation of pain and/or chronic pain effects on cognitive-emotional circuitry; 2) Preclinical or clinical original studies/reviews in animals/humans presenting data about pharmacological therapeutic targets to promote analgesic and neuromodulator effects in cognitive and emotional deficits which are comorbid with chronic pain. 3) Current status of novel translational approaches from animals to humans and vice-versa exploring potential biomarkers involved in chronic pain and its emotional-cognitive states.
