Unitary Caring Science Jean Watson, 2018-07-16 Unitary Caring Science: The Philosophy and Praxis of Nursing takes a profound look at conscious, intentional, reverential caring-healing as sacred practice/praxis and as a necessary turn for survival. Jean Watson posits Unitary Caring Science for the evolved Caritas-conscious practitioner and scholar. A detailed historical discussion of the evolution from Caring Science toward Unitary Caring Science reflects the maturing of the discipline, locating the nursing phenomena of wholeness within the unitary field paradigm. An exploration of praxis as informed moral practice results in an expanded development of the ten Caritas processes, resulting in a comprehensive value-guide to critical Caritas literacy and ontological Caritas praxis. Watson writes for the Caritas Conscious Nurse™ or the Caritas Conscious Scholar/Practitioner/Educator on the journey toward the deeper caring-healing dimensions of life. Unitary Caring Science offers a personal-professional path of authenticity, bringing universals of Love, Energy, Spirit, Infinity of Purpose, and Meaning back into nurses lives and their life's work. Unitary Caring Science serves as a continuing, evolving message to the next generation of nurse scholars and healing-health practitioners committed to a praxis informed by mature disciplinary consciousness. Nursing Jean Watson, 1999 This classic book discusses the balance between science and caring that is the basis of the nursing profession. Watson's Theory of Human Care draws from the works of Western and Eastern philosophers, approaching the human care relationship as a moral idea that includes concepts such as phenomenal field, actual caring occasion, and transpersonal caring. Inherent in this theory are concepts of health and illness, the environment, and the universe.--Back cover.

Human Caring Science: A Theory of Nursing Jean Watson, 2014-08-14

Nursing Jean Watson, 2008-05-31 Jean Watson's first edition of Nursing, now considered a classic, introduced the science of human caring and quickly became one of the most widely used and respected sources of conceptual models for nursing. This completely new edition offers a contemporary update and the most current perspectives on the evolution of the original philosophy and science of caring from the field's founding scholar. A core concept for nurses and the professional and non-professional people they interact with, care is one of the field's least understood terms, enshrouded in conflicting expectations and meanings. Although its usages vary among cultures, caring is universal and timeless at the human level, transcending societies, religions, belief systems, and geographic boundaries, moving from Self to Other to community and beyond, affecting all of life. This new edition reflects on the universal effects of caring and connects caring with love as the primordial moral basis both for the philosophy and science of caring practices and for healing itself. It introduces Caritas

Processes, offers centering and mediation exercises on an included audio CD, and provides other energetic and reflective models to assist students and practitioners in cultivating a new level of Caritas Nursing in their work and world.

The Effects of Watson's Theory of Human Caring on the Nurse Perception and Utilization of Caring Attributes and the Impact on Nurse Communication Mary Owens McMillan, 2017 The purpose of this project was to create a profile of nurses who utilize Jean Watson's caritas processes and acknowledge caring by forming transpersonal caring relationships with all patients. In an acute care, 468-bed healthcare organization located in southeastern United States, on five adult medical surgical units, an overall score of 52% existed on the nurse communication domain within the Hospital Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems (HCAHPS) survey. This score was well below the national top box of the 76th percentile set for the domain of nurse communication. Within the five units selected, 67 nurse participants completed a pre survey using Nyberg's Caring Assessment Scale. An education presentation based on Jean Watson's Theory of Human Caring was presented to front line nurses within the five units selected. After the presentation, nurses were encouraged to incorporate Watson's caritas processes and establish caring moments with their patients. Four weeks following the education presentation and implementation, post surveys using the Caring Assessment Scale were administered to determine if scores had increased from the pretest. Results indicated a significant difference between the pretest and posttest surveys with the posttest scores being higher (p

Caring in Nursing Utilizing Jean Watson's Theory of Human Caring Via 10 Clinical Caritas Processes Ileen Craven, 2011 This evidence-based practice project focused on the importance of caring in nursing. Twenty senior-level nursing students were educated on caring in nursing in utilizing Jean Watson's Theory of Human Caring via her ten Clinical Caritas Processes. Prior to and after the educational intervention students were asked to complete a Caring Efficacy Scale. The Caring Efficacy Scale utilized was a thirty item self-reporting scale which measured each student's efficacy and understanding of caring. Each copy of the Caring Efficacy Scale was compared via a paired t-test. The results showed statistical significance. This evidence-based practice project was a facet of the degree requirement for a Doctor of Nursing Practice degree. This evidence-based practice project also meets the requirements of the Doctor of Nursing Practice degree by highlighting the American Association Colleges of Nurses eight essentials of Doctoral Education for Advanced Nursing Practice. Recommendations are included for replication of this evidence-based practice project. Keywords: evidence-based practice, Doctor of Nursing Practice, Jean Watson, caring in nursing, Caring Efficacy Scale, eight essentials of Doctoral Education for Advanced Nursing Practice -- Abstract.
