El arte parietal en monumentos megalíticos del noroeste ibérico Fernando Carrera Ramírez,2011 El objetivo fundamental del trabajo que se presenta consistía en la delineación de estrategias para el conocimiento y la protección del patrimonio conformado por las expresiones artísticas parietales conservadas en los monumentos megalíticos del noroeste peninsular. La primera tarea a realizar consistió en un trabajo de catalogación intensiva, lo que ha permitido certificar la existencia de pintura parietal (y en menor medida grabado) en un buen número de monumentos en los que se desconocía su existencia. Esta aportación contiene tanto componentes patrimoniales como estrictamente científicos, y viene a consolidar la idea de que el arte parietal es un elemento más de todo el fenómeno megalítico, presente en todas las cronologías y geografías del mismo. Durante esos trabajos de campo se ha intentado mejorar la información que se tenía de los diversos sitios visitados, ampliando las diversas informaciones contenidas en el catálogo: administrativas, geográficas, arqueológicas, etc. Asimismo, se ha incorporado una fuerte carga informativa relativa al estado de conservación y las posibilidades de alteración de los diversos elementos que conforman cada monumento megalítico. Por último, se ha intentado mejorar la documentación del arte parietal megalítico en Galicia, al menos de aquellos monumentos peor conocidos y/o registrados. Con las muestras tomadas en los yacimientos se han realizado análisis y estudios que han permitido avanzar en la comprensión de los materiales y técnicas utilizadas en la ejecución del arte parietal megalítico. Aunque pintura y grabado son técnicas asociadas en el arte parietal megalítico, se ha podido determinar que -al menos en la zona noroccidental- existe un razonable dominio de las técnicas pictóricas, tanto más cuanto más recientes son los yacimientos. Por lo que respecta a la pintura, sobre una general homogeneidad compositiva (pigmentos, revocos), las diferentes soluciones.
