

Tirso De Molina Don Juan

Tirso de Molina

Burlador de Sevilla Y El Convidado de Piedra Tirso de Molina, 1986 Tirso de Molina was, with Lope de Vega and Calderon, one of the great dramatists of 17th century Spain, which produced a theatre as vital rich and as varied as its Elizabethan counterpart. The Trickster of Seville is thoroughly representative of the drama of Spain's Golden Age: a drama of fast-moving action which set its face against classical precepts, broke the unities of time and place, cheerfully mixed the serious and the comic, combined main and sub-plots, and cultivated Spanish subjects and Spanish characters. In this respect Tirso's Don Juan is of course, the most famous character in the drama of the Golden Age, as well as the first of a long line which extends through Mozart and Moliere to the 20th century.

"Don Juan Tenorio" Tirso de Molina, 1959

Three Plays of Tirso de Molina Tirso de Molina, 2017-05-02 Generally credited as the creator of Don Juan, one of the most famous characters in literature, Tirso de Molina (1580-1648) is largely unknown to English readers. He wrote within an extraordinary literary milieu (the Spanish Golden Age--Velazquez, Ribera, Cervantes...) and left his own mark. This book presents three of his best known works, never before translated in one collection: the Don Juan play, a theological play and a court comedy. Don Juan is recognized as a masterpiece of psychological portraiture and has been the subject of countless analyses, and diagnosed as a misogynist, a repressed homosexual, a misanthrope, a narcissist. However he may be interpreted, the reader senses that in Don Juan, Tirso was probing a dark area of the human spirit. The playwright is known for his realistic and penetrating psychological portraits of women. His female characters are forceful, cunning, witty and courageous, and their frank and unabashed sexuality is striking for the age--so much so that Tirso was censured and eventually banished from Madrid.

Harry Kemp, the Last Bohemian William Brevda,1986 The first critical biography of the American writer. The Tramp Poet Harry Kemp (1883-1960). His creative works included poetry, drama, fiction, and the best-selling autobiography in prose, Tramping on Life.

The Comedia in English Susan Paun De García,Donald R. Larson,Donald Larson,2008 The bringing of Spanish seventeenth-century verse plays to the contemporary English-speaking stage involves a number of fundamental questions. Are verse translations preferable to prose, and if so, what kind of verse? To what degree should translations aim to be 'faithful'? Which kinds of plays 'work', and which do not? Which values and customs of the past present no difficulties for contemporary audiences, and which need to be decoded in performance? Which kinds of staging are suitable, and which are not? To what degree, if any, should one aim for 'authenticity' in staging? In this volume, a group of translators, directors, and scholars explores these and related questions.--Jacket

Don Juan's Wager François Rachline,2001 Why is it that the myth of Don Juan has endured some three hundred years? And why has such an unlikely figure remained such a potent concept in a cultural economy constructed around notions of symmetry, balance, and democratic capitalism? François Rachline uses Don Juan as an antagonist in every way to the mechanisms of contemporary culture to illuminate our present situation, offering him up as an antidote to the increasingly fragile sense of self that is left to us in the age of late capitalism. This remarkable study offers an original and incisive analysis of the economic, libidinal, and ethical dimensions of citizenship today. In this joyful essay, [François Rachline] helps us to understand Don Juan as the negative and revealing agent of his time as well as a prototype who foreshadows our own time. He refuses any economy of symmetry: no repentance to compensate for his crimes, no payments to reimburse his debts, not even submission to the fear of death, which could have redeemed the decadent pleasures of his life. His wager? The game. His choice? To enjoy rather than to possess. His rule? Disequilibrium yet he continues in perpetual motion. He never stops, and dies a loser; in that he is common. But he disappears without surrendering, and in that sense he is superb. Jean Pol Droit, Le Monde

The Metamorphoses of Don Juan's Women Ann Davies,2004 While many scholars have approached Don Juan in terms of myth, this study argues for the understanding of Don Juan as a discourse of gender relations, changing over time. Using examples from the plays by Tirso de Molina, Molière, Mozart, Zorrilla, Shaw and Frisch, it argues that Don Juan's entire identity as a male individual is constructed around women, but that over time - reflecting a growing sense of crisis in the male individual - the women appear more and more pathological in their desire for Don Juan. In contrast with early modern works where women fend for themselves in a positive manner, the heroines of later Don Juan works actively prey on the individual male. This book argues that these changes in approach to the female characters, and, in tandem, the developing identity of the male protagonist, suggest Don Juan as dischronic discourse rather than myth.
