Geology and Water Resources of the Northern Portion of the Black Hills and Adjoining Regions in South Dakota and Wyoming (Classic Reprint) N. H. Darton, 2017-06-27 Excerpt from Geology and Water Resources of the Northern Portion of the Black Hills and Adjoining Regions in South Dakota and Wyoming It is desirable to repeat here the statement made in my previous report that all who study the geology of the Black Hills must feel impressed by the remarkably clear general conceptions of the geologic relations of this region afforded by the survey made by Mr. Henry Newton over a quarter of a century ago! In one short season, with many unfavorable conditions for travel ing, he determined most of the broader features and recorded many of the essential details. His posthumous report, edited by Mr. G. K. Gilbert, will always remain a standard work on Black Hills geology. Later studies have added greatly to our knowledge of the details of the stratigraphy and structure, the distribution of the rocks and minerals, and the age of the beds, and have afforded means for a more complete elucidation of the geologic history, especially the physiographic development of the Black Hills region. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. Black Hills National Forest Lode and Placer Gold Geology William A Szary M S,2022-04-28 The geology of the Black Hills National Forest is dominated by exposures of Precambrian rocks following erosion of the Paleozoic, Mesozoic, and Cenozoic sequences that were domed up from granitic intrusions and later eroded. Proterozoic plutonism metamorphosed and deformed many of the Precambrian rocks along with fault development. During these intrusive processes, gold deposits and associated mineralization occurred under several different types of emplacement. In addition to lode gold emplacement, erosion stripped many of the primary gold into placer gold deposits during Phanerozoic time. Three chapters are included to describe the geology of lode and placer gold in the Black Hills National Forest. Chapter 1 provides an introduction to the Black Hills geology. Chapter 2 presents Black Hills deposits mostly as lode gold deposits. Chapter 3 presents geomorphic descriptions of placer gold deposits and where they might be found.
