Shane J. Lopez

The Science of Subjective Well-Being Michael Eid,Randy J. Larsen,2008-01-01 This authoritative volume reviews the breadth of current scientific knowledge on subjective well-being (SWB): its definition, causes and consequences, measurement, and practical applications that may help people become happier. Leading experts explore the connections between SWB and a range of intrapersonal and interpersonal phenomena, including personality, health, relationship satisfaction, wealth, cognitive processes, emotion regulation, religion, family life, school and work experiences, and culture. Interventions and practices that enhance SWB are examined, with attention to both their benefits and limitations. The concluding chapter from Ed Diener dispels common myths in the field and presents a thoughtful agenda for future research.

OECD Guidelines on Measuring Subjective Well-being OECD,2013-03-20 These Guidelines represent the first attempt to provide international recommendations on collecting, publishing, and analysing subjective well-being data.

Well-being for Public Policy Ed Diener,2009 In this volume, the authors explain the reasons why subjective indicators of well-being are needed. They describe how these indicators can offer useful input and provide examples of policy uses of well-being measures. They describe the validity of the subjective well-being measures as well as potential problems. The authors then delve into objections to the use of subjective well-being indicators for policy purposes and discuss why these objections are not warranted. Finally, they describe the measures that are currently in use and the types of measures that are most likely to be valuable in the policy domain. The volume will be of interest to researchers in psychology and economics.

Subjective Well-being: a Definition of Subjective Well-being and Happiness Frank Ra,2010-12-29 Subjective well-being includes our response, perceived satisfaction, and assessment of life. Subjective well-being is not a synonymous of happiness, even if the two are often used interchangeably. Subjective well-being is often assessed using scales and questionnaires. Subjective well-being: a definition of subjective well-being and happiness is a pamphlet based on the book A course in happiness. The pamphlet format makes it more accessible, both in terms of time and money, to readers who are interested only in selected topics which are part of A course in happiness. Subjective well-being: a definition of subjective well-being and happiness is based on the research, inspirations, tools, etc. described on <http://www.iswb.org/> and <http://www.amareway.org/>

The Science of Well-Being Ed Diener,2009-07-16 Major Theoretical Questions Theories about subjective well-being have grown over the past several decades, but have been refined only slowly as adequate data have been compiled to test them. We can characterize the theories describing happiness along several dimensions. The first dimension is whether the theory places the locus of happiness in external conditions such as income and status, as many sociological theories do, or within the attitudes and temperament of the individual, as many psychological theories do. Some have maintained that people adapt to all circumstances over time, so that only individual personality matters for producing happiness, whereas others believe that economic and other societal factors are the dominant forces in producing well-being. Throughout my writings there is a mix of both the internal and external factors that influence well-being. A second dimension that characterizes scholarship on well-being is the issue of whether the factors affecting well-being are relative or absolute. That is, are there standards used by people at all times and places in judging their lives and in reacting to events? Or are standards dependent on what other people possess, on expectations, and on adaptation levels based on past circumstances? Again, there is evidence supporting the role of both universal and relative standards. People around the globe are probably influenced by common factors such as friendship versus loneliness, but even these universal influences on happiness are probably subject to some degree of comparison depending on what the person is used to and what others have. However, some factors might be much more comparative than other influences, as Hsee, Yang, Li, and Shen (in press) have described.

Subjective Well-Being and Life Satisfaction James E. Maddux, 2017-12-15 The quality of people's relationships with and interactions with other people are major influences on their feelings of well-being and their evaluations of life satisfaction. The goal of this volume is to offer scholarly summaries of theory and research on topics at the frontier of the study of these social psychological influences—both interpersonal and intrapersonal—on subjective well-being and life satisfaction. The chapters cover a variety of types of relationships (e.g., romantic relationships, friendships, online relationships) as well as a variety of types of interactions with others (e.g., forgiveness, gratitude, helping behavior, self-presentation). Also included are chapters on broader social issues such as materialism, sexual identity and orientation, aging, spirituality, and meaning in life. Subjective Well-Being and Life Satisfaction provides a rich and focused resource for graduate students, upper-level undergraduate students, and researchers in positive psychology and social psychology, as well as social neuroscientists, mental health researchers, clinical and counselling psychologists, and anyone interested in the science of well-being.

Integrated Marine Biosphere Research: Ocean Sustainability, Under Global Change, for the Benefit of Society Carol Robinson, Annette Breckwoldt, Alistair James Hobday, Eugene J. Murphy, Prateep Kumar Nayak, Alice Newton, 2025-11-11 Interdisciplinary research spanning natural and social sciences and society is needed to inform decision-making for sustainable use and conservation of marine resources and services. The Integrated Marine Biosphere Research (IMBeR) project is an interdisciplinary global environmental change research network with the mission to: Promote integrated marine research and enable capabilities for developing and implementing ocean sustainability options within and across the natural and social sciences, and communicate relevant information and knowledge needed by society to secure sustainable, productive and healthy oceans. To achieve this mission, the IMBeR science plan identifies three objectives which inform all IMBeR activities, including the 2019 IMBeR Future Oceans2 open science conference: 1) Understanding and quantifying the state and variability of marine ecosystems, 2) Improving scenarios, predictions and projections of future ocean-human systems at multiple scales and 3) Improving and achieving sustainable ocean governance. This Research Topic welcomes submissions (including perspective and opinion papers, policy briefs, original research articles and reviews) related to any of the three interconnected IMBeR objectives. These submissions could cover (1) the mechanisms of natural climate variability and anthropogenic global change and impacts on marine biogeochemical cycles, species and ecosystems, and human well-being and livelihoods; (2) modelling studies providing quantitative projections and predictions of future coupled human-marine ecosystems including human well-being and livelihoods, governance processes and infrastructure at global, regional and local scales, (3) syntheses of integrated research highlighting key knowledge gaps, recommendations for future action and quantification of the impact of interdisciplinary networks and capacity building activities and (4) papers related to improving the science-policy-society interface of marine research and aiding transition towards sustainable ocean and coastal governance, including provision and implementation of trade-off options for adaptation and mitigation, improving research co-design and co-production mechanisms and ocean literacy, understanding of the role of economic, social, cultural and political norms and values in marine governance, and integration of human behaviour and decision making into global, regional and local models. The Topic Editors Carol Robinson, Annette Breckwoldt, Alistair Hobday, Eugene Murphy, Prateep Nayak and Alice Newton declare that they are members of the IMBeR scientific steering committee or IMBeR Human Dimensions Working Group and are collaborating with the IMBeR research community.
