

Life Expectancy In Indonesia

Vedi R. Hadiz

Levels and Trends of Mortality in Indonesia, 1961-1971 Larry Heligman, 1975 Prepared under a resource support agreement with U.S. Agency for International Development, Office of Population.

Indonesia Today Grayson Lloyd, Shannon L. Smith, 2001 The turn of the century and the crossroads of reformasi presents a timely juncture for examining Indonesia's political, economic, and social history--both to evaluate current events and to chart the country's future course. Providing an up-to-date overview, this volume explores events, processes, and themes in contemporary Indonesia--including the evolution of political institutions and democracy, economic development and political economy, religious and social movements, political ideology, and the role of the armed forces. By holding a mirror to historical events, the authors add a rich dimension to our understanding of Indonesia and its problems, free from the exigencies of the present and the prejudices of the past.

Social Science and Power in Indonesia Vedi R. Hadiz, 2005 The premise of Social Science and Power in Indonesia is that the role and development of social sciences in Indonesia over the past fifty years are inextricably related to the shifting requirements of power. What is researched and what is not, which frameworks achieve paradigmatic status while others are marginalized, and which kinds of social scientists become influential while others are ignored are all matters of power. These and other important themes and issues are critically explored by some of Indonesia's foremost social scientists in this seminal work.

Health Financing in Indonesia, 2009-01-01 In 2004 the Indonesian government made a commitment to provide its entire population with health insurance coverage through a mandatory public health insurance scheme. It has moved boldly already provides coverage to an estimated 76.4 million poor and near poor, funded through the public budget. Nevertheless, over half the population still lacks health insurance coverage, and the full fiscal impacts of the government's program for the poor have not been fully assessed or felt. In addition, significant deficiencies in the efficiency and equity of the current health system, unless addressed will exacerbate cost pressures and could preclude the effective implementation of universal coverage (Ue and the desired result of improvements in population health outcomes and financial protection. For Indonesia to achieve UC, systems' performance must be improved and key policy choices with respect to the configuration of the health financing system must be made. Indonesia's health system performs well with respect to some health outcomes and financial protection, but there is potential for significant improvement. High-level political decisions are necessary on key elements of the health financing reform package. The key transitional questions to get there include: [the benefits that can be afforded and their impacts on health outcomes and financial protection; [how the more than 50 percent of those currently without coverage will be insured; [how to pay medical care providers to assure access, efficiency, and quality; [developing a streamlined and efficient administrative structure; [how to address the current supply constraints to assure availability of promised services; [how to raise revenues to finance the system, including the program for the poor as well as currently uninsured groups that may require government subsidization such as the more than 60 million informal sector workers, the 85 percent of workers in firms of less than five employees, and the 70 percent of the population living in rural areas.

Contemporary Demographic Transformations in China, India and Indonesia Christophe Z. Guilmoto,Gavin W.

Jones,2015-12-12 This book examines the profound demographic transformation affecting China, India, and Indonesia, where 40% of the world's people live. It offers a systematic, comparative approach that will help readers to better understand the changing social and regional recomposition of the population in these regions. The chapters present a detailed investigation and mapping of regional trends in mortality, fertility, migration and urbanization, education, and aging. Throughout, the analysis carefully considers how these trends affect economic and social development. Coverage also raises global, theoretical questions about the singular ways in which each of these three countries have achieved their demographic transition. As the authors reveal, demographic trends seem to be somewhat linear and anticipatable, providing Asia's three demographic giants and their governments a formidable advantage in planning for the future. But the evolution of human mobility in China, India, and Indonesia, closely intertwined as it is with changing economic conditions, appears less predictable and ranks high among the major challenges to demographic knowledge in the coming decades. Offering an insightful look into the components, implications, and regional variations of a changing population, this book will appeal to social scientists, demographers, anthropologists, sociologists, epidemiologists, and specialists in Asian studies.

Mortality Transition in Indonesia 1950-1980 Budi Utomo, Meiwita B. Iskandar, 1986 The ESCAP secretariat, with financial support from the UN Fund for Population Activities, initiated in 1984 the project ANALYSIS OF TRENDS AND PATTERNS OF MORTALITY IN THE ESCAP REGION. The 1st expert meeting under the project was held at Bangkok in November 1984. This report on Indonesia is divided into 9 categories and a bibliography. Sections include background information, mortality trends and patterns, mortality differentials, major health problems and causes of deaths, health services and their development, nutritional situation, health and population policies, health and mortality prospects, and policy recommendations. Some highlights of the data follow. 1. Infant mortality rate is an important indicator; trends in the rate clearly are important clues to comprehensive changes that are taking place in Indonesian society. Unfortunately, little has been reported on the child mortality rate prior to 1950. The actual death rate for the 1950s is uncertain. Some estimate the crude death rate at 20-30/1000 and the infant mortality rate at 100-300/1000. Mortality began to decline sharply in the 1960s. By the end of the 1960s, the infant mortality rate was estimated at around 137/1000 live births. By 1980, the infant mortality rate was 98/1000 live births. Further conclusions regarding the age pattern of mortality in Indonesia cannot yet be made during this decade. 2. Official figures show that 45% of all deaths in the 1st 5 years of life are due to immunizable diseases and diarrhea. Respiratory infections are the next causes of infant and child mortality; tetanus alone causes more than 40% of total mortality in the 1st month after birth. 3. Data from the early 1970s show that infant and childhood mortality was 28% higher among males than among females. 4. Estimations from the 1980 census show that the infant mortality rate is 30% lower for urban than rural areas. 5. Children born to mothers with higher educational attainment tend to have a lower risk of mortality. 6. Children of professional women have the best chances of survival, followed by the non-working group. The mortality rate of children of blue collar mothers was 2 times that of white collar mothers.
