Robert Edwards

Aboriginal Participation in Construction ,2001

Social Enterprise in the Construction Industry Martin Loosemore,Dave Higgon,2015-08-27 Through the emerging lens of social enterprise, this book examines how the global construction industry can engage more effectively with the communities in which it builds, addressing disadvantage and environmental degradation to leave a positive legacy for future generations. Combining insights from leading research and real-life case studies of social enterprise in the construction sector, the result is a practical framework which will help social enterprises, clients, consultants and construction firms work collectively to build a thriving social enterprise sector. Readers of this timely book will learn to embrace social enterprise and an important new sector in the global construction industry. They will learn to see community involvement as an opportunity rather than a risk, and fully understand the broader role they can play in building a fairer and more sustainable society.

Human Resource Management in Construction Andrew Dainty,Martin Loosemore,2013-05-07 The construction sector is one of the most complex and problematic arenas within which to manage people. As a result, the applicability of much mainstream human resource management (HRM) theory to this industry is limited. Indeed, the operational realities faced by construction organizations mean that all too often the needs of employees are subjugated by performance concerns. This has potentially dire consequences for those who work in the industry, for the firms that employ them and ultimately, for the prosperity and productivity of the industry as a whole. In this new edition of their leading text, Andrew Dainty and Martin Loosemore have assembled a collection of perspectives which critically examine key aspects of the HRM function in the context of contemporary construction organizations. Rather than simply update the previous edition, the aim of this second edition is to provide a more critical commentary on the ways in which the industry addresses the HRM function and how this affects those who work within the industry. To this end, the editors have gathered contributions from many of the leading thinkers within construction HRM to critique the perspectives presented in the first edition. Each contributor either tackles specific aspects of the HRM function, or provides a critical commentary on industry practice. The authors explain, using real-life case studies, the ways in which construction firms respond to the myriad pressures that they face through their HRM practices. Together the contributions encourage the reader to rethink the HRM function and its role in defining the employment relationship. This provides essential reading for students of construction and project management, and reflective practitioners who are interested in theoretically informed insights into industry practice and its implications.

First Nations Communications Toolkit ,2007 The First Nations Communications Toolkit is a unique resource jointly developed by Indian and Northern Affairs Canada, BC Region, and Tewanee Consulting Group. This Toolkit was designed explicitly for First Nations communicators and is based on input from First Nations communicators and administrators working for First Nations organizations. It offers information on many topics, including communications planning, publications, events and media relations, from a First Nations' perspective. The best practices and practical lessons learned that have been included in the toolkit are drawn from Tewanee Joseph's experience working on communications projects with over 30 First Nation communities.--Preface.

Reasons for Decision in the Matter of NOVA Gas Transmission Ltd Canada. National Energy Board,2012 On 29 April 2011, NOVA Gas Transmission Ltd. (NGTL) applied to the National Energy Board (NEB) for a Certificate to construct and operate a proposed expansion of NGTL's existing Alberta System in Alberta and British Columbia. NGTL's Alberta System consists of approximately 24,000 km of natural gas pipeline within Alberta and British Columbia. On 10 June 2011, the NEB issued the GH-2-2011 Hearing Order, which established the process for its consideration of the application. The NEB considered the evidence and submissions made by all participants in the GH-2-2011 proceeding. The NEB's views and conclusions on individual matters which fall within the scope of the requested authorizations are contained in this report, and constitute their Reasons for Decision in respect of this matter.--Includes text from document.

Indigenous Legalities, Pipeline Viscosities Tyler McCreary,2024-04-02 Indigenous Legalities, Pipeline Viscosities examines the relationship between the Wet'suwet'en and hydrocarbon pipeline development, showing how colonial governments and corporations seek to control Indigenous claims and how the Wet'suwet'en resist. Tyler McCreary explores pipeline regulatory review processes, reviews attempts to reconcile Indigeneity with development, and asks fundamental questions about territory and jurisdiction. In the process, he offers historical context for the continuing influences of colonialism on Indigenous peoples. Throughout, McCreary demonstrates how the cyclical movements between resistance and reconciliation are affected by the unequal relations between Indigenous peoples, colonial governments, and development operations. This sophisticated analysis invites readers to consider the complex realities of Indigenous and Wet'suwet'en law, as well as the politics of pipeline development.

Other People's Country Timothy Neale, Stephen Turner, 2018-02-02 Other People's Country thinks through the entangled objects of law – legislation, policies, institutions, treaties and so on – that 'govern' waters and that make bodies of water 'lawful' within settler colonial sites today. Informed by the theoretical interventions of cosmopolitics and political ecology, each opening up new approaches to questions of politics and 'the political', the chapters in this book locate these insights within material settler colonial 'places' rather than abstract structures of domination. A claim to water – whether by Indigenous peoples or settlers – is not simply a claim to a resource. It is a claim to knowledge and to the constitution of place and therefore, in the terms of Isabelle Stengers, to the continued constitution of the past, present and future of real worlds. Including contributions from the fields of anthropology, cultural studies, cultural geography, critical legal studies, and settler colonial studies, this collection not only engages with issues of law, water and entitlement in different national contexts – including Australia, Aotearoa/New Zealand, New Caledonia and the USA – but also from diverse disciplinary and institutional contexts. This book was originally published as a special issue of Settler Colonial Studies.

Natural Resources and Aboriginal People in Canada Robert Brent Anderson, Robert M. Bone, 2003 The central theme of this book is that natural resource use is a fundamental element of Aboriginal culture. Containing articles, commentaries and cases that identify key issues, problems and opportunities, the book explores the complex interrelationship between Aboriginal people, non-Aboriginal people and the land and its resources. Selected readings consider the recent expansion of natural resource utilization by Aboriginal organizations and individuals, and the historical context within which Aboriginal natural resource use has changed.

Reform and Resistance in Aboriginal Education Quentin Beresford, Gary Partington, 2003 Aboriginal education has been in crisis for decades. Despite reform efforts of successive Federal and State Governments, low levels of academic achievement are common and poor participation and retention rates continue.
