Julian and the Gregorian Calendars , Presents information on the Julian and the Gregorian calendars, provided by Peter Meyer. Discusses the history of the two calendars. The Julian calendar was adopted in 46 B.C. by Julius Caesar and consisted of a solar year of 12 months and 365 days with an extra day every fourth year. Notes that the Gregorian calendar was adopted upon the promulgation of Pope Gregory's decree in the Catholic countries of Italy, Spain, Portugal, and Poland. Discusses the accuracy of the Gregorian and Orthodox calendars.

The Mathematics of the Gregorian Calendar David Braverman, 2009-10-30 Most of this book is based on codes assigned to each month of the year, to each year and to each century. Since Pope Gregory XIII replaced the Julian calendar with the Gregorian calendar on February 24, 1582, (and I don't know if he named after himself), the calendar has followed a cycle that makes it predictable. That's where you and I come in. The mathematics is based on an easily learned system called Modulo 7. The problems involve dates and are based on an equation with involving 4 quantities. One of them will be unknown. In Task A, that will be the day of the week. If a carnival had a wheel with a spinner that had the 7 days of the week on them, wherever the spinner stops MUST be a day of the week. That is essentially modulo 7. There are no fractions. There are just seven numbers. Readers should know multiples of 7 to avoid having to look at the table.

The Julian Day Number for Any Gregorian Calendar Date After 1900 John A. Eisele, Paul E. V. Shannon, NAVAL RESEARCH LAB WASHINGTON D C., 1975 Compact formulas and FORTRAN subprograms are presented to compute the Julian day number, day of the week, and modified Julian day number for any Gregorian calendar date. The inverse problem of recovering the Gregorian calendar date from a known Julian day number is also presented. Basic astronomical applications are discussed as well as the precision requirements.
