Socio-Spatial Dynamics in Mediterranean Europe José María Feria-Toribio, Ricardo Iglesias-Pascual, Federico Benassi, 2024-05-21 This book analyses the most recent socio-territorial trends that are developing in the Spanish metropolitan space. The first part focuses on the most recent metropolitan dynamics and demographic changes in Southern Europe. The second part discusses the most important processes in metropolitan areas: the problems of increasing social and residential vulnerability and the problems of diversity management. The third part analyses some concrete cases of the main changes and complexity in the spatial dynamics of metropolitan areas in Southern Europe. Finally, the fourth and last part provides an overview on the instruments and the resources put in place by some Southern European cities for the development of governance and citizen participation as an instrument of reaction to the social, economic and COVID crisis. By discussing the main changes and uncertainties derived from the social scenarios after the pandemic, the dynamics of social dualisation of the city, as well as the necessary instruments for its analysis and the main challenges in urban governance with special attention of Southern European context, this book provides an interesting read for spatial demographers, human geographers, social scientists and spatial planners.

Le sette Rome Ketil Lølo, Salvatore Monni, Federico Tomassi, 2021-06-15 T00:00:00+02:00 Roma è una capitale con un modesto peso demografico, ma al suo interno racchiude un grande «caleidoscopio urbano»: può capitare che una strada divida mondi diversi per estetica, composizione sociale, qualità della vita. Questa diversità è frutto della sua impetuosa crescita negli ultimi 150 anni, una crescita che non poteva generare un territorio urbano omogeneo e uniforme: quella che continuiamo a chiamare Roma è divenuta ormai una grande area metropolitana, dalla costa del Tirreno fino ai primi rilievi appenninici, e al suo interno ha visto svilupparsi e prendere forma altre città. Sulla base di dati aggiornati – economici, urbanistici, demografici, e relativi a infrastrutture e servizi – gli autori proseguono il lavoro di ricerca e mappatura della capitale che ha preso avvio con Le mappe della disuguaglianza: una ricognizione accurata della realtà romana, che ha consentito di delineare sette «città nella città», con caratteristiche simili, per composizione dei nuclei familiari, livelli di istruzione, tipologie occupazionali, dotazioni urbane, preferenze politiche. Nelle 29 carte a colori le sette città emergono in tutta la loro evidenza, e accanto ad esse, in maniera pressoché analoga, la geografia delle imprese, che si dispongono nel tessuto urbano seguendo una specifica frammentazione, a seconda del settore di interesse, e quella linea centrifuga che da tempo contraddistingue la crescita della capitale. Una capitale delle disuguaglianze, perché le sette città mappate nel libro non fanno che portare alla luce in maniera ancora più marcata una realtà fatta di disparità economiche e sociali fortissime, sulle quali la pandemia ha inciso pesantemente, esasperando il disagio delle aree più fragili: non è un caso che il virus si diffonda maggiormente nelle zone popolari del quadrante est della città, intorno e soprattutto fuori dal Gra, dove i residenti crescono e le difficoltà socio-economiche sono maggiori, o che l'impatto più devastante sia quello sulla «città degli invisibili», a causa delle difficili condizioni igieniche, della mancanza di spazi adeguati al distanziamento, di tipologie occupazionali spesso manuali e poco adatte al lavoro agile, della necessità di muoversi col trasporto pubblico. Una vera e propria radiografia della capitale è quella proposta nel volume, che offre utili strumenti di lavoro nella prospettiva di introdurre un cambio di rotta di fronte ai tanti cambiamenti in corso e a una crisi, quella che ha investito da tempo la città, che va ben oltre le dinamiche economiche, e sempre di più somiglia a una crisi identitaria.

Le mappe della disuguaglianza Ketil Lømo, Salvatore Monni, Federico Tomassi, 2021-06-15T00:00:00+02:00 Quando si parla di Roma – come esempio per antonomasia di una realtà urbana complessa e stratificata, sintesi del difficile cammino delle metropoli in Europa e nel mondo – spesso si cade nella trappola dei luoghi comuni, della visione stantia di una città che non c'è più, dell'inconsapevolezza di come cambiano i cittadini e dove si spostano. Oggi, nell'era della connettività universale, una volta che ci si è allontanati dai percorsi più battuti, a Roma si può avere la sensazione di fare un salto nel buio e, un po' come accadeva ai navigatori del XV secolo (loro sì, per colpa di mappe inesatte), di imbattersi in nuove terre, piene di problemi ma anche di potenzialità. Il volume – costruito come un percorso che si snoda attraverso una dettagliata serie di mappe a colori – traccia una geografia delle disuguaglianze tra i quartieri della capitale in un confronto inedito e prezioso con le altre tre principali città metropolitane italiane: Milano, Napoli e Torino. Gli autori, mossi da un grande rigore scientifico e da una forte passione civile, ci restituiscono la complessità sociale e spaziale della capitale, mostrandone le tante sfaccettature e le disuguaglianze che la attraversano. Una complessità con cui occorre fare i conti e da cui ripartire. Come osserva Walter Tocci nel denso saggio a chiusura del volume, Roma offre di sé facce mutevoli, come un caleidoscopio, «dando la percezione dell'inesorabile disorganicità. Eppure, alle cangianti visioni di Roma sono legate anche le speranze per la sua rinascita». Accanto a Roma, dunque, e a confronto con Roma, altre grandi realtà: Milano, Napoli e Torino. Di queste quattro città metropolitane si passano al setaccio i quartieri e i comuni dell'hinterland su temi che interessano da vicino i cittadini: dai trasporti alla scuola, dal turismo all'ambiente, dalla sanità alla presenza di stranieri, e sui quali quotidianamente grava il peso delle disuguaglianze socio-economiche. Questi estesi territori urbanizzati, altamente diversificati, poco conosciuti e in continua evoluzione, necessitano di essere indagati a fondo con strumenti capaci di mettere a fuoco problemi, criticità e differenze. Per questo motivo, il lavoro non si limita all'analisi delle loro caratteristiche in termini aggregati, ma indaga le città attraverso indicatori con un livello di dettaglio territoriale molto più fine: le 155 zone urbanistiche di Roma, gli 88 nuclei di identità locale di Milano, le 94 zone statistiche di Torino e i 30 quartieri di Napoli. L'auspicio è che queste mappe siano consultate da tanti, ma soprattutto da quelli che le politiche le devono pensare e disegnare.

La geografia delle piattaforme digitali Antonello Romano, 2022 The Atlas aims to offer an empirically-situated view on the socio-spatial effects mediated by the digital platforms by adopting a critical and geographical data-centric approach. The objective is to provide a practical understanding of the consequences of the digital platform's pervasiveness and its differential impacts on space and places: the (uneven) geography of the digital platforms. By employing maps, graphs and alternative cartographic representations we intend to make those socio-spatial relationships and impacts immediately visible and more understandable. The Atlas, therefore, offers food for critical reflection on the socio-spatial inequalities amplified by the platforms and on the potential use (eg. public value) of the platform's spatial Big Data. The work combines Spatial Analysis, Social Network Analysis and Data Viz adding a further dimension, the spatial one, to the debate on the platform society.
