

A Poem About A Car

SJ Ball

Poem-mobiles J. Patrick Lewis, Douglas Florian, 2014-01-07 This paperback picture book features fresh, quirky poems by two picture-book poetry veterans which explore practically every kid's favorite topic: CARS! The U.S. Children's Poet Laureate and an award-winning children's poet join their prolific forces in this picture book of poems about cars. But they're not just any cars: there's the Sloppy-Floppy-Nonstop-Jalopy (So unique there is no copy); the Bathtub Limosine (With hot water heating / And porcelain seating); and the High Heel Car. Each of the thirteen quirky, inventive poems will speak directly to the imaginations of children, as will Holmes's high-concept, detail-filled illustrations.

The Racing Car Driver Joan Shulman, 2014-08-14 The Racing Car Driver is a story, written in poetry form, intended for children ages four and older. It is a story with a moral about a racing car driver who can't seem to win a race. Through the use of pictures, the story describes why he can't seem to win, and how he resolves his problems. It is intended to develop joy in reading poetry by presenting types of racing cars, racing tracks, automobile parts, and the drivers themselves in an easy to read rhyming manner. The pictures, by and large, are true to life, as is the story itself. At a time when fantasy has become the major part of children's lives, I felt the need to put this children's book in the realm of reality. As a reading specialist, I wanted to develop a story that seemed real and understandable to young children. It was originally written with boys in mind, at a time when girls were not racing car drivers. Times have changed, and hopefully this book will find a place on the bookshelves of both girls and boys. At the end of the book, there is a section for parents, siblings, teachers, or friends as to what the morals of the book are (particularly in these days of the prevalence of bullying and teasing). This section includes some questions a parent or teacher can ask regarding the content of the book and allows the child to talk about anger, teasing, bullying, and feelings of frustration as well as feelings of joy when something good happens as a result of determination and hard work. Another underlying moral of the story is that sometimes we choose the wrong thing to do, but there is usually a way to turn things around and learn from our mistakes. Hopefully, adults will enjoy reading it to their children, or listening to their children read to them. It will give them an opportunity to share, not only what they know about cars and racing, but also an opportunity to talk to the children about how bullying can hurt or how it can make someone stronger by finding ways to overcome adversity. They might also share times in their lives when they made a wrong decision, but turned it around into something they could do even better. How many of us have made a wrong career choice, or tried something that was impossible for us to do? Then found that we had learned something from our mistakes? I hope you will enjoy the story as much as I have enjoyed using poetry to write about something not very common in poetic form for children.

My Life in Cars Linda Strever, 2018-10-15 Through a myriad of experiences with cars, these poems explore the events, relationships and evolution of a woman's life. ...a poetic memoir, punctuated with poignant nostalgia, comedic vignettes and soul-searching heartbreak. Entertaining and enlightening, ... It's a deeply satisfying road trip. Patrick Dixon, author of Arc of Visibility Reading these poems is a pleasure that will leave you feeling wiser for having been invited to share in hard-won lessons of a life not your own. Emily Van Kley, author of The Cold and the Rust ...these poems move me to reconsider how the cars we drive transport our stories, recasting our daily lived experiences into the dreams and tragedies that inhabit every Memory's Lane. Sandra Yannone, author of Maiden Voyage Strever, as always, is mistress of poetic narrative. Not only do I know more about Linda after riding with her in Ramblers and Impalas, I understand more about my own road. Joanne M. Clarkson, author of The Fates story within a story, and to do it with a poet's artful and meticulous attention to sound and imagery. - John Warner Smith, Poet Laureate of Louisiana, 2019-2020 Ed Ruzicka's 'My Life in Cars' takes you on a wild ride in every model on God's open road ... and never runs out of gas. - David Madden, author of 'Marble Goddesses and Mortal Flesh'
