Handbook of Ethnography in Healthcare Research Paul Hackett, Christopher Hayre, 2020-12-02 This handbook provides an up-to-date reference point for ethnography in healthcare research. Taking a multi-disciplinary approach, the chapters offer a holistic view of ethnography within medical contexts. This edited volume is organized around major methodological themes, such as ethics, interviews, narrative analysis and mixed methods. Through the use of case studies, it illustrates how methodological considerations for ethnographic healthcare research are distinct from those in other fields. It has detailed content on the methodological facets of undertaking ethnography for prospective researchers to help them to conduct research in both an ethical and safe manner. It also highlights important issues such as the role of the researcher as the key research instrument, exploring how one's social behaviours enable the researcher to 'get closer' to his/her participants and thus uncover original phenomena. Furthermore, it invites critical discussion of applied methodological strategies within the global academic community by pushing forward the use of ethnography to enhance the body of knowledge in the field. The book offers an original guide for advanced students, prospective ethnographers, and healthcare professionals aiming to utilize this methodological approach.

Strategies for College Writing Robert Funk, Linda S. Coleman, Elizabeth McMahan, 1999-08 A rhetorically organized reader for Freshman Composition courses. Employing an approach that is firmly process-oriented and based on interactive instruction, this text presents extended, lively essays meant to spur ideas for writing, suggest ways to approach a topic, and illustrate methods for organizing and presenting information. It incorporates high-interest reading material with creative, principled pedagogy; traditional concerns about correctness, coherence, and meaning; and step-by-step writing assignments that guide students in composing successful papers. A key objective of the anthology is to integrate reading and writing more closely and usefully than most other readers on the market today.

Subsistence and Non-industrial Forest Use in the Lower Liard Valley Thomas Mark Beckley,Brian Howard Hirsch,Northern Forestry Centre (Canada),1997 Subsistence and non-industrial forest uses are important in many northern communities. In some communities, these forest uses may provide more economic value than commercial forest activities. This study uses the replacement value method to estimate the value of some subsistence and non-industrial forest activities to two communities in the lower Liard valley, Fort Liard, and Nahanni Butte. Results show that these forest uses provide between $950 000 and $1 700 000 of income and in-kind income to valley residents. In addition, forest resources are widely shared throughout these communities. Over half the harvests of meat, fuel, berries, and other subsistence goods are given to persons outside the harvesters household. Comparison of contemporary harvest data to the historical data that exists suggests that subsistence and non-industrial forest activities are equal to or greater than historical harvests over the past thirty years.

Models of Music Therapy Interventions in School Settings Brian L. Wilson,2002 Provides a comprehensive overview of the role of music therapy in the education of the special learner. Component Skills Involved in Sight Reading Music Ji In Lee,2004 Sight reading is a functional skill that is necessary for learning new pieces, chamber music and accompaniment. This study tried a new theoretical approach and was based on a combination of expertise and neuro psychological approaches. A large number of independent variables that fit into the different categories of elementary cognitive skills, general cognitive skills and expertise were used. The division of memory into working and short-term memory, and then the division of short-term memory into music-specific and non-music-specific, was a unique point of this study. Another worthy contribution of this study was the division of sight reading stimuli into five different levels of complexity, which meant that a controlled variation of conditions were implemented in the dependent variable. A crucial point of this study was the use of an objective method of analysing the sight reading performances and having an approach which was cautious and conservative towards data analysis. Another important characteristic of this study was the division of the expertise by age. This paved the way to examine the role of expertise in detail, which had never been done before. From the results of this study, sight reading seems to be a complex combination of skills which consists not only of expertise, but also of cognitive skills and psychomotor optimisation and contributes to the formation of a theory of sight reading with educational consequences. As a further result, it could be shown that the impact of this set of predictors varies with changing task difficulty, and analyses resulted in a dynamic model of predictor variables for each task level.
