Curriculum Development for Students with Mild Disabilities Carroll J. Jones,2010 Many teachers of students with mild disabilities experience difficulty writing IEPs, and they lack a foundation in the regular education curriculum of academic skills and sequences associated with each grade level. This book was designed to provide this foundation. Presented in the form of scope and sequence charts that can be used as objectives for the State Frameworks (goals and benchmarks), this resource assists in preparing IEPs, including the new process of identification of children with disabilities through their responses to intervention (RTI). An additional focus is on the impact of federal laws (IDEA and NCLB) on the curriculum and assessment in schools today. The book has been reorganized into ten chapters, including: historical perspectives; early childhood special education curricula; oral expression curricula; reading and listening curricula; written expression curricula; mathematics curricula; educational technology curricula K-12; social and self competence curricula; science curricula; and evaluation reports/case studies (Appendix). The scope and sequence charts were modified to include current national education standards and benchmarks and the skills in each of the academic areas that require annual state assessment. These charts will assist teachers in modifying the general education curriculum for students with mild disabilities and to write complete Individual Education Programs, using age-appropriate and developmentally appropriate teaching and assessment materials. Chapter summaries, included for review purposes, also serve as selective and motivational reading. With special education teachers in short supply and the demands on their time so great, this book will provide a valuable resource for cutting the clutter and moving to the heart of the teaching process: determining what skills students need to move effectively to the next level.

Education and Training in Biomedical Science Sheri Scott,Beverley Cherie Millar,Stephen McClean,2024-09-23 Globally, biomedical science is a rapidly expanding discipline in relation to technological advances, scientific research and healthcare delivery. A degree in biomedical science offers the gateway to a diverse range of career pathways, primarily in healthcare service delivery, research and development in varied healthcare related disciplines (medical microbiology, clinical chemistry, haematology, cell pathology and genetics) as well as careers encompassing environmental, pharmaceutical, nutrition and forensic sectors and other areas such as teaching, communication and bioinformatics. As such it is fundamentally important that education providers deliver educational and training programmes which embed and promote the development of essential skills required when seeking employment in such varied sectors so that graduates are workforce-ready. The British Journal of Biomedical Science (Impact Factor of 4.6 and CiteScore of 5.8) is excited to present – ‘Education and Training in Biomedical Science’ a Special Issue showcasing the best practices in pedagogical approaches which have significantly impacted teaching, workplace training and assessment ensuring graduates have the knowledge and skills required for employment within the biomedical science sector. The Special Issue showcases the global diversity of innovative educator and practitioner-led research and practice, performed across the entire breadth of the biomedical science sector and present advances in theory, methodology and application of embedding workforce skills and knowledge requirements into current education and development programs.
