On Calculation of the Extended Gini Coefficient Duangkamon Chotikapanich, William E. Griffiths, 2001

Measuring Education Inequality Vinod Thomas, Yan Wang, Xibo Fan, 2001 Equal access to education is a basic human right. But in many countries gaps in education between various groups are staggering. An education Gini index -- a new indicator for the distribution of human capital and welfare -- facilitates comparison of education inequality across countries and over time.

Calculating the Extended Gini Coefficient from Grouped Data - a Covariance Presentation Edna Schechtman, Shlomo Yitzhaki, 2014 The basic approach to estimating the Gini and extended Gini indices is to approximate the Lorenz curve by a number of linear segments, and then estimate the Gini coefficients as the areas (or weighted areas) between the linear segments and the 45-degree line. We show that the estimator for the extended Gini, obtained from the Lorenz curve (Chotikapanich and Griffiths, 2001) is algebraically identical to a covariance-based estimator. The advantages of the covariance-based estimators are twofold; first, they are easy to compute, using any standard statistical software, and second, the covariance-based estimators allow for the decomposition of the Gini index of a sum of variables (or populations).

United States Income, Wealth, Consumption, and Inequality Diana Furchtgott-Roth, 2020-08-25 Over the past 75 years, household income in the United States has increased substantially. Still, by some measures, income inequality has increased as well. This has been the subject of contested public policy and political discourse. The question still stands: How can we better articulate the nuanced changes in American incomes? It is difficult to have conversations about income inequality without an agreed-upon set of terms, metrics, and concepts. United States Income, Wealth, Consumption, and Inequality, edited by Diana Furchtgott-Roth, examines the trends in income growth in the United States and explores various measures of income, including market, post-tax, and post-transfer income. Within each chapter, distinguished experts explain how income and wealth--and the way we measure them--have changed in the United States, which demographic groups have benefited from these changes, and how mobility has changed over time and over generations. Specific chapters explain the roles of gender and race. The resulting book is relevant to modern international policy, particularly in light of the COVID-19 pandemic, and addresses what can be done to increase economic mobility in the United States.

OECD Studies on Tourism Measuring and Monitoring the Sustainability of Tourism at Regional Level in Spain Indicator Framework and Compilation Guide OECD,2024-10-11 Tourism is a cornerstone of Spain's economy and a key driver of regional development. This report presents indicators to monitor tourism sustainability in Andalusia, Catalonia, Navarra, and the Region of Valencia, building on existing frameworks and good practices at international, national and regional level. A set of 30 indicators and 57 metrics is informed by key policy issues and priorities identified in existing tourism strategies and measurement frameworks in the four regions. They cover economic benefits, seasonality, local resident perceptions, accessibility, climate change mitigation and water management. A sub-set of ten 'priority' metrics has also been identified to monitor key policy issues and help prioritise action towards sustainable development. The report highlights avenues for future development to refine indicator methodologies and close existing data gaps on central policy issues such as cultural heritage, greenhouse gas emissions, waste and digitalisation.

Proceedings of International Conference on Advanced Computing Applications Jyotsna Kumar Mandal,Rajkumar Buyya,Debashis De,2021-11-23 This book gathers selected high-quality research papers presented at the 2nd International Conference on Advanced Computing Applications (ICACA 2021), held virtually during 27--28 March 2021. The book is divided into four sections. These are communication and computing, signal processing and multimedia, computational intelligence and data analytics and decision computing. The topics covered are advanced communication technologies, IoT-based systems and applications, network security and reliability, virtualization technologies, compressed sensors and multimedia applications, signal image and video processing, machine learning, pattern recognitions, intelligent computing, big data analytics, analytics in bio-computing, AI-driven 6G mobile wireless networks and autonomous driving.

Computing, Analytics and Networks Rajnish Sharma,Archana Mantri,Sumeet Dua,2018-07-06 This book constitutes the revised selected papers from the First International Conference on Computing, Analytics and Networks, ICAN 2017, held in Rajpura, India, in October 2017. The 20 revised full papers presented in this volume were carefully reviewed and selected from 56 submissions. They are organized in topical sections on Mobile Cloud Computing; Big Data Analytics; Secure Networks. Income Distribution During System Reform and Economic Development in China Zongsheng Chen,Yunbo Zhou,2005 The book is concerned with research on income distribution inequality of Chinese residents in the last 20 years of the 20th century and the beginning of the 21st century. Measuring and making clear the status of inequality of every consisting parts of normal income of Chinese residents is an important concept. First, on the basis of the statistical data and the estimated data, as well as several kinds of methods that are used to calculate income inequality and suited for the available data, the authors computed the population-income Gini Coefficients of normal income inequality respectively for China's national, urban and rural areas. Second, by using urban/rural income ratio, Theil index and others, they measured the status and trends of Chinese urban/rural gap and regional income disparity, as well as their influence on the whole income inequality. Third, by case study and decomposition analysis some main factors, which had impacts on income inequality of urban and rural residents in China, and their influence, were researched. Fourth, the authors studied and measured the status and changes of the poor population and poverty rates in rural and urban areas in China. Fifth, the trend of inequality of normal income of Chinese residents was predicted at large, and the status of distribution inequality of Chinese residents was judged.

Measuring Education Inequality Vinod Thomas,Yan Wang,Xibo Fan,2014 Equal access to education is a basic human right. But in many countries gaps in education between various groups are staggering. An education Gini index - a new indicator for the distribution of human capital and welfare - facilitates comparison of education inequality across countries and over time. Thomas, Wang, and Fan use a Gini index to measure inequality in educational attainment. They present two methods (direct and indirect) for calculating an education Gini index and generate a quinquennial data set on education Gini indexes for the over-15 population in 85 countries (1960-90). Preliminary empirical analysis suggests that: 'n Inequality in education in most of the countries declined over the three decades, with a few exceptions. 'n Inequality in education as measured by the education Gini index is negatively associated with average years of schooling, implying that countries with higher educational attainment are more likely to achieve equality in education than those with lower attainment. 'n A clear pattern of an education Kuznets curve exists if the standard deviation of education is used. 'n Gender gaps are clearly related to education inequality, and over time, the association between gender gaps and inequality becomes stronger. 'n Increases in per capita GDP (adjusted for purchasing power parity) seem to be negatively associated with education inequality and positively related to the labor force's average years of schooling, after controlling for initial income levels. This paper - a joint product of the Office of the Vice President and the Economic Policy and Poverty Reduction Division, World Bank Institute - is an extension of the paper Measuring Educational Inequality: Education Gini Index from 1960 to 1990 (Vinod Thomas, Yan Wang, and Xibo Fan, World Bank, Washington, DC). This study was funded by the Bank's Research Support Budget under the research project The Quality of Growth (RPO 682-02).
