Essential Concepts of Occupation for Occupational Therapy Charles Christiansen, Kristine Haertl, 2023-11-30 Essential Concepts of Occupation for Occupational Therapy is an accessible introduction to vital concepts in occupational science for the occupational therapy practitioner or student. It invites therapists to view and understand their clients differently—by using an “occupational lens” to focus on the lives of their clients as everyday doers. It addresses the key questions at the heart of understanding humans as occupational beings: What do people typically do? And, where, when, how, why, and with whom do they do it? These questions organize the key concepts from occupational science that form the first chapters of this book, enabling therapists to better understand their clients—and enabling their clients to better understand the importance of occupation to their well-being. Additional chapters clearly describe how therapists can use occupation-based models to apply an expanded view of occupation and make evaluation and intervention more relevant and beneficial to their clients. A final chapter examines trends and lifestyle changes occurring in the 21st century to anticipate how these might impact future practice. Through use of engaging and thoughtful cases that illustrate many of the concepts, this guide will help practitioners clearly understand their clients as doers, while also providing enhanced ways for therapist to confidently apply these concepts in practice.

Proposal to Include Occupational Therapy in Age-friendly New York City Working Groups Julie Kardachi,2015 This capstone project presents an evidence-based proposal to Age-Friendly New York City (NYC) to include occupational therapy (OT) involvement in the Age-Friendly Working Groups. Age-Friendly NYC's goal is to create a more inclusive city that is sensitive to the needs of older New Yorkers. Currently, working groups with topics of specific focus are convened to develop actionable goals for Age-Friendly NYC to implement. Background and evidence for age-friendly initiatives demonstrate the need to include input from older adults in the community, be multi-disciplinary and address a number of factors. There is evidence to demonstrate that occupational therapists (OTs) possess the knowledge, skills, and person-environment-occupation-performance (PEOP) models of practice that provide the link between the target population of older adults, their environment, and their occupational participation. By including OT in future working groups, Age-Friendly NYC will have access to the unique occupational perspective of OT. The addition of this perspective will enhance and expand the ideas, problems, solutions, and strategies identified by the working groups, with a focus on occupational participation. This proposal addresses the Centennial Vision's goal of OT being widely recognized, evidence-based, and meeting society's occupational needs. The proposal was presented to the Age-Friendly team at Age-Friendly NYC, self-reflection highlights the transformative experience of this project.
