Research Proposals: A Practical Guide, 3rd Edition Martyn Denscombe, 2025-11-12 “I’d recommend this book to anyone who has a great research idea but isn’t sure how to turn it into a convincing proposal. Denscombe has produced a clear guide full of helpful tips that take you through the stages of creating, structuring and submitting your research proposal. This latest, updated edition really stands out in demonstrating how artificial intelligence can be used ethically to support the development of a distinctive application.” Rosalind Edwards, Professor of Sociology, University of Southampton, UK “This book provides a useful guide through the key decisions involved in developing a research proposal. It offers useful insight to research students at all levels, including those applying for small research grants. The chapter on outcomes is a particular strength, helping researchers to consider and plan impact from the design stage.” Stephanie Kiliç, Senior Lecturer in Psychology, Teesside University, UK “An essential resource that lays out the principles for success for first-time researchers. This third edition is brought fully up to date to include important developments, such as the use of AI tools.” Ellen Annandale, University of York, UK This book provides a clear and concise vision of why research proposals are necessary, what proposals need to include and how to write a successful proposal. It offers practical advice on how to deal with the seven basic questions that any research proposal needs to answer: What is it all about? What do we already know? What do we need to find out? How will we get the necessary information? What will it cost and how long will it take? Is the research socially acceptable? What will be produced? This third edition includes a new ‘AI Assist’ feature which draws on the potential of artificial intelligence to provide easily available support and inspiration when it comes to the task of writing a research proposal. Research Proposals is perfect for master’s students planning a dissertation, undergraduate students approaching their final year project and PhD students applying for acceptance onto a doctoral programme. Martyn Denscombe is Emeritus Professor at De Montfort University, UK. He is the author of The Good Research Guide: Research Methods for Small-Scale Social Research Projects, 7e (2021) and Ground Rules for Social Research: Guidelines for Good Practice, 2e (2009), both published by Open University Press.

Research in Practice Martin Terre Blanche, Martin J. Terre Blanche, Kevin Durrheim, Desmond Painter, 2006 A major shift in research methodology from technical to more contextual and pragmatic approaches, this thorough resource incorporates new trends while also providing comprehensive coverage of the full range of established research approaches and techniques, skillfully combining epistemology, methodology, statistics, and application in a volume that is both sophisticated and practical. Placing a greater emphasis on interdisciplinary and applied research skills, this guide encourages the concurrent use of qualitative and quantitative methods and explores such complex topics as ethical issues in social science research; inferential statistical methods; and Marxist, feminist, and black scholarship perspectives.

Research Proposals: A Practical Guide Denscombe, Martyn, 2012-09-01 This indispensable guide to writing research proposals takes the reader on a carefully planned journey, which is clearly sign-posted from the outset to the destination of the final proposal ... Denscombe demystifies the academic jargon inherent in proposal writing, instilling confidence in all those writing proposals, from undergraduate to doctoral level. Dr Kate Adams, Reader in Education, Bishop Grosseteste University College, Lincoln, UK This much-needed handbook provides a guide for any researcher to turn a research idea into a successful research proposal ... Denscombe offers both a clear framework for organising the research thought process and plentiful hints for crafting a persuasive case for why a research proposal deserves financial support for getting it done. Dr Alberto Asquer, Lecturer of Business Strategy and Policy, Faculty of Economics, University of Cagliari, Italy This is a clear and unambiguous guide covering all the essentials needed to build strong research proposals. It will prove to be invaluable not only to those new to writing research proposals but as a fast reference point for those already familiar with the requirements. Jennifer Grant, PhD researcher, University of Sunderland, UK This how-to guide is 'a candle in the dark' for many who want to start writing research proposals. It is ... brimming with straightforward strategies which anyone can use to overcome the key fears associated with 'keeping on track' and 'selling your' research to convince funders and even your professors! Hosea Handoyo, Boehringer - Ingelheim Fonds Research Fellow, Germany Whether you are an undergraduate student doing your final year project, a masters student writing your dissertation, or a PhD student applying for acceptance onto a doctoral programme, this practical book will help you to produce a successful and persuasive research proposal. Written by an experienced and best-selling author, this handbook uniquely draws a parallel between a research proposal and a sales pitch. The book provides guidance on what to include and what to omit from your proposal and demonstrates how to 'sell' your research idea. Denscombe ably guides you through each stage of the process: Choosing a research topic Reviewing the literature Formulating the research question Explaining the research methods Estimating the costs and planning the time involved Obtaining research ethics approval With top tips throughout, this book provides an insight to the logic behind research proposals and the way that good proposals address 7 basic questions that readers will ask when they evaluate any proposal.

The Qualitative Dissertation Maria Piantanida, Noreen B. Garman, 1999-04-16 This guide is for students working on dissertations that are based on qualitative research. The guide attempts to frame the dissertation process as a set of iterative cycles of deliberation which include facing the dissertation, moving into the dissertation, crafting the research proposal, proposing the study, living with the study, entering into public discourse, and adjusting to life after the dissertation. The first section consists of 10 chapters focusing on these cycles. The second section is comprised of five think pieces, more informal and conversational conceptions (and misconceptions) of deliberation in relation to theoretical perspectives on discourse. These pieces are titled: What Do We Mean by Deliberation? Dissertation Study Groups: Cultivating a Community for Discursive Deliberation; Knowledge Claims and the Issue of Legitimacy in Educational Research; Tuning In to Discourses on Qualitative Inquiry; and Text/Interpretation. Throughout the book, insets provide many case examples. (Contains approximately 250 references.) (DB)

Qualitative Research Sheila Keegan, 2009-10-03 Qualitative Research helps those who have limited experience of qualitative research, to become proficient buyers of research. It will enable buyers to commission QR with confidence; to choose a supplier, agree a methodology with the research agency, understand the process and end up with useful outputs which address the initial research issues. It will help train new practitioners in terms of the basics of qualitative research and it will also develop the knowledge and understanding of more experienced qualitative researchers. Qualitative research explores questions such as what, why and how, rather than how many or how much; it is primarily concerned with meaning rather than measuring. Understanding why individuals and groups think and behave as they do lies at the heart of qualitative research, and market research practitioners and students of market research will all benefit from this title.

Inventing Structures for Industrial Research Kees Boersma, 2002 The early history of the Philips National Laboratory began in the winter of 1913 when Gerard Philips and his brother Anton founded a research organization as a separate part of their company in Eindhoven. The Philips brothers hired Gilles Holst and others to carry out scientific experiments in order to improve existing light bulb technology and later to create new products such as x-ray tubes and radio sets. Holst became the leader and organizer of the research laboratory. Scientists who worked under him proved the business value of industrial research for the Philips company. The National Laboratory story indicates that it was not enough for Philips to simply have a tradition of innovation-the company also needed to create a culture and structure that permitted the coordination between people and resources that was necessary for developing innovations in an industrial context. These innovations spawned such diverse topics as irradiation of plants with artificial light and creating an agricultural research network of particular interest is comparisons drawn between Philips and General Electric. Kees Boersma shows that the National Laboratory history in the first decades of the twentieth century can be seen as part of a broader development internationally. During the function of the industrial research laboratory became institutionalized. The institutionalization process of industrial research involved an intentional structuring of the research organization in the company, in which various persons worked together in specific business contexts. At a local level, Philips people, headed by Holst, reinvented the research function. It is exactly this process that is central this book. This will be a welcome addition to the literature on business history-informed as it is by a sense of social theory and social organizations. Kees Boersma is a historian who works as a researcher in the group of Culture, Organization and Management of the Faculty of Social Studies at the Free University of Amsterdam. His research expertise is grounded in the areas of science, technology, culture, and organization studies.

Structure of Research Proposal, Thesis and Dissertation Edwin K Kanda,2020-05-02 This is a concise research guide for graduate students, especially those undertaking Master and Postgraduate Diploma, on how to write their proposals and finally thesis and dissertations. It gives students a short but useful information on what constitutes a research proposal, the difference between a thesis and a proposal and how to disseminate their research findings. Some students are always in a dilemma on what to include in a manuscript, and they find themselves with pertinent choices. Sometimes, students in natural and applied sciences such as engineering may be required to use a model while undertaking their research. The first question often is the understanding what entails a modelling study. Secondly, how different is it from conventional research. This guide, therefore, provides an overview of the important considerations in scientific research involving one or more models.
