Cambio climático y derechos humanos Elizabeth Salmón, Cristina Blanco, Iván Lanegra, Deborah Delgado, Hugo Cahueñas, Juan Francisco Acevedo G., María José Veramendi, Pedro Francke, Cécile Blouin, Óscar Espinosa, Marcela Huaita, 2020-09-01 La publicación, coordinada por Elizabeth Salmón, reúne trabajos de autores y autoras de amplias trayectorias tanto en la investigación y la docencia como en la gestión pública nacional, para discutir el sinnúmero de

desafíos que impone el cambio climático al disfrute de un amplio abanico de derechos humanos en todo el mundo. El libro pone en debate una cuestión de permanente actualidad que no siempre resultó atractiva para los tomadores de decisiones ni para las agendas internacionales: la relación dinámica e indisociable entre cambio climático y derechos humanos. Este volumen se compone de tres apartados y un anejo de referencias bibliográficas. El primero de ellos corresponde a nociones teóricas que a manera de introducción nos acerca a la materia. El segundo desarrolla los tipos de afectaciones que el fenómeno ambiental viene provocando en desmedro de determinados derechos humanos. El tercero da cuenta de las vulneraciones diferenciadas del fenómeno climático y plantea posibles salidas a esta crisis de larga data. El primer apartado cuenta con los artículos de Elizabeth Salmón, Cristina Blanco, Deborah Delgado e Iván Lanegra. Salmón inaugura la sección poniendo énfasis a las ventajas y dificultades de incluir el marco teórico de los derechos humanos en la lucha contra el cambio climático. Blanco, por su parte, indaga sobre el rol activo-pasivo del sector privado y de las empresas en el fenómeno medioambiental. Lanegra, en cambio, presta atención a la gobernanza climática en el marco de un enfoque de derechos. Para cerrar esta sección, Delgado traza a manera de ensayo una tipología que facilita la comprensión de la relación cambio climático - derechos humanos para los movimientos sociales. En el segundo apartado Hugo Cahueñas nos habla de las obligaciones estatales en la protección del derecho a una vivienda a propósito de la gestión de riesgos de desastres. De otro lado, Juan Francisco Acevedo destaca la importancia del derecho al agua en el contexto de la crisis hídrica global y lo hace mediante el estudio de la Región Andina Central. Por su parte, María José Veramendi problematiza los impactos del cambio climático sobre el derecho a la alimentación adecuada en Perú evaluando las respuestas del Estado. Pedro Francke cierra esta sección preguntándose sobre los efectos del cambio climático al derecho a la salud en el Perú de hoy. El último apartado del libro cuenta con los notables artículos de Cécile Blouin, Óscar Espinosa y Marcela Huaita. Desde una perspectiva de derechos humanos, Blouin analiza los impactos del cambio climático en los procesos migratorios, así como las diversas acciones -y omisiones- de los Estados en la región hacia este fenómeno. Espinosa, por su parte, sitúa la problemática ambiental desde las percepciones indígenas de la Amazonía peruana a la luz del derecho al autogobierno. Para cerrar esta sección, Huaita nos ofrece una interesante reflexión sobre la mayor vulnerabilidad de las mujeres frente al cambio climático en razón a su rol en la sociedad. Pero además, para agravar la situación, la autora demuestra cómo la política de la región de Cajamarca invisibiliza las acciones lideradas por mujeres orientadas a mitigar los efectos del fenómeno ambiental. Escrito en una prosa cuidada y accesible, y sustentado en un amplio corpus bibliográfico y teórico, este libro coordinado por Elizabeth Salmón constituye una importante contribución a los estudios en derechos humanos de Perú. De un lado, promueve una discusión local en torno a la problemática del cambio climático desde nuevos cuestionamientos y diversas perspectivas; de otro, aporta valiosa información para la adopción de medidas que desde lo interseccional hagan frente al cambio climático y sus efectos en la región.

Intersecting Public Administration and Technology for Public Trust and Citizen Engagement Santos Silva, Luan Carlos, Solleiro, José Luis, 2025-10-09 The intersection of public administration and technology may enhance public trust and increase citizen engagement. As governments deal with growing demands for transparency, efficiency, and responsiveness, digital tools and data-driven systems have become indispensable. From e-governance platforms and open data initiatives to AI-powered public services, technology reshapes how citizens interact with the state and how public administrators deliver services. However, this digital transformation also raises critical questions about accessibility, privacy, and equity. Successfully integrating technology into public administration requires technical innovation, ethical governance, and inclusive design. This convergence may build more accountable institutions and foster meaningful civic participation in the digital age. Intersecting Public Administration and Technology for Public Trust and Citizen Engagement explores the pivotal role of digital transformation in the public sector. It examines the integration of digital technologies into public administration, setting the stage for a detailed analysis across various domains. This book covers topics such as digital democracy, cybersecurity, and traffic management, and is a useful resource for business owners, government officials, policymakers, engineers, academicians, researchers, and scientists.
