The book guides readers step-by step through effective therapeutic strategies, mainly based on cognitive-behavioral therapy, and illustrated with excerpts of dialogs between therapists and family caregivers from real sessions. Different modules address topics such as dealing with challenging behavior, self-care, perfectionism and guilt, as well as changes in the relationship with the ill person, barriers to seeking social and professional support, stress management and emotion regulation, accepting one's own limits, and dealing with institutionalization. These modules can be put together to meet different individuals' needs. Particular emphasis is placed on creating a positive therapeutic alliance, resource activation, and helping caregivers develop the motivation for change. Finally, multiple handouts that can be used in clinical practice are available for download. The intervention is suitable for various settings, including face-to-face therapy or remote forms such as telephone or online therapy. This manual is ideal for clinical psychologists, gerontologists, psychotherapists, social workers, and counsellors working with people with dementia and their families.

Fostering self-regulated learning Slavica Šimić Šašić, Orna Heaysman, Barbara Otto, 2025-11-25 In recent years, scientific research work and literature have paid great attention to the ability of students to self-regulate their learning. Numerous theories and models of self-regulated learning have been developed (Boekaerts, 2011; Butler and Cartier, 2018; Efklides, 2011; Hadwin, Järvelä, and Miller, 2017; Pintrich, 2000; Winne and Hadwin, 1998; Zimmerman, 2000). The authors agree that self-regulated learning is a cyclical, multidimensional process that includes the interaction of personal (cognitive, metacognitive, motivational, emotional), behavioral and environmental factors (Panadero, 2017), which enable students to better manage their learning. The ability to self-regulate learning contributes to positive educational outcomes, but also to the development of lifelong learning skills, which facilitate coping with the demands of modern society. However, the learning of a significant part of students is not optimally self-regulated (Kramarski and Michalsky, 2009). Teachers, as agents of self-regulated learning (SRL), can promote SRL in a variety of direct and indirect ways: by teaching students effective learning strategies, or by structuring stimulating learning environments (Dignath-van Ewijk and van der Werf, 2012). Most teachers agree that students need help to become self-regulated learners and express positive beliefs about SRL. However, they feel uncertain about how to promote students' SRL, and stimulate SRL to a limited extent (Dignath and Büttner, 2018; Dignath-van Ewijk et al., 2012; Karlen et al., 2020; Kistner et al., 2015; Perry et al., 2008; Spruce and Bol, 2015; Šimić Šašić et al., 2023; Vandevelde et al., 2012). Teaching students how to self-regulate their learning improves their performance. However, it is still not clear which specific learning strategies should be taught and how they should be taught in order to improve student performance. Research shows that different strategies are effective in different disciplines (reading, writing, mathematics, science) (de Boer et al., 2012). Encouraging SRL depends on numerous factors related to the teacher (teacher beliefs, gender, teaching experience, competences, etc.), class, school, subject, but also the students themselves (abilities, age, SES, etc.) (Chatzistamatiou et al., 2013; De Smul et al., 2018; Dignath-van Ewijk, 2016; Dignath-van Ewijk and van der Wert, 2012; Elmas et al., 2011; Fauzi and Widjajanti, 2018; Hargreaves, 2005; Karlen et al., 2023; Lombaerts et al., 2007; Lombaerts et al., 2009; Moos and Ringdal, 2012; Peeters et al., 2015; Šimić Šašić et al., 2021; Šimić Šašić et al., 2023; Vandeveldel et al., 2012; Yan, 2018). The results of these studies are often inconclusive. Therefore, the goal of this Research Topic is to gather new knowledge about the factors that influence the activation of SRL from the perspective of teachers, students, classes, schools, and even from the perspective of educational policies of different educational systems (countries). Of particular interest is to examine the effects of different strategies for improving SRL, considering different characteristics of students, fields/disciplines, and level of education (early childhood, primary, secondary, or higher education), and to examine the mechanisms of these effects. It is necessary to investigate how students and teachers perceive the effectiveness of different methods of encouraging SRL. Most studies of teachers' promotion of SRL were conducted on preservice teachers, as part of the evaluation of teacher training programs for the promotion of SRL, but there is little research in the area of in-service teachers' practice to promote SRL. Therefore, this Research Topic aims to offer a synthesis of the latest research on fostering SRL and to collect original contributions that can offer new insights and incentives for future research. This collection of articles welcomes both theoretical and empirical (qualitative and/or quantitative) papers that contribute to the consolidation of current knowledge, highlight limitations and critical issues of current research, or offer new ideas and thinking to support future research. Original empirical research from different parts of the world (including validation of instruments in cultures where they have not yet been tested) is welcome, and cross-cultural comparisons are especially appreciated. We also welcome review papers, systematic reviews and meta-analyses that have a significant impact on understanding the relationship between fostering self-regulated learning and self-regulation of learning and the relationship with learning outcomes. Papers within this research topic should offer a synthesis of the latest knowledge in this research area and stimulate future research.

Goal Attainment Scaling Thomas J. Kiresuk, Aaron Smith, Joseph E. Cardillo, 2014-02-25 There is an extensive literature on Goal Attainment Scaling (GAS), but the publications are widely scattered and often inaccessible, covering several foreign countries and many professional disciplines and fields of application. This book provides both a user manual and a complete reference work on GAS, including a comprehensive account of what the method is, what its strengths and limitations are, how it can be used, and what it can offer. The book is designed to be of interest to service providers, program directors and administrators, service and business organizations, program evaluators, researchers, and students in a variety of fields. No previous account of GAS has provided an up-to-date, comprehensive description and explanation of the technique. The chapters include a basic how to do it handbook, step-by-step implementation instructions, frequently occurring problems and what should be done about them, methods for monitoring the quality of the goal setting process, and a discussion of policy and administration issues. There are many illustrations from actual applications including examples of goals scaled for the individual, the specific program, the agency, or the total system. Procedures for training and estimates of training costs are also provided.

Early Psychological Research Contributions from Women of Color, Volume 2 Rihana Shiri Mason, Jon E. Grahe, Michelle L. Ceynar, 2024-07-29 This volume serves as a companion to Early Psychological Research Contributions from Women of Color, Volume I. It focuses on the dissertations of 20 builders, women of color who earned their doctoral degrees in psychology prior to 1990 and who were leaders in the field through their leadership or innovation. An introductory chapter bridges the two volumes. Each subsequent chapter summarizes and examines a dissertation using a consistent format, including a biographical sketch of the builder with an emphasis on her significant contribution to an organization or innovation that moved the field forward, a summary of the dissertation, a reproducibility critique of the dissertation, and an alternative framework section that analyzes the dissertation from a modern theoretical perspective or methodological approach (e.g., feminist theory, liberation psychology, mestiza consciousness, etc.). The topics cover the breadth of the discipline of psychology, including physiological, cognitive, developmental, social, and clinical. Some topics are also relevant to business, education, medicine, and social work. The varying nature of these dissertations allows the book to be used to augment coursework either as a complete collection or as individual chapters. This volume is intended for both instructors and students. The course activities provide examples of how to integrate key aspects of the dissertation research into the classroom. The volume was written with upper-level undergraduate students in mind so that it could be used across the psychology curriculum, but the editors envision this book as a potential graduate-level text as well.

Crisis, Trauma, and Disaster Linda Lutisha Black, Stephen V. Flynn, 2020-02-07 Crisis, Trauma, and Disaster: A Clinician's Guide teaches counselors how to respond and intervene with individuals, groups and organizations. corresponding chapters on working with those affected. Each chapter defines the issue and contrasts it with general counseling requirements, and then presents the history and theory as well as common interventions. Each chapter contains The Counselor's Toolkit and presents assessment, case conceptualization and treatment approaches followed by case illustrations. The text concludes with a chapter on emerging trends and a chapter on caring for those who care.
