School Nurses' Use of the Public Health Wheel Interventions of Counseling, Consultation, and Health Teaching, 2014 The purpose of this study was to evaluate and describe which of the public health nursing interventions on the intervention wheel are utilized by school nurses. A literature review was conducted to determine school nurse's use of the Public Health Intervention Wheel, specifically for the blue wheel interventions of consultation, counseling, and health teaching. A consent letter accompanied a survey which was designed utilizing the Public Health Intervention Wheel as the framework used to formulate survey items. The survey sought to identify ways in which school nurses use the wheel in practice. The survey was sent to 2989 members of the National Association of School Nurses (NASN). The 55 survey items were divided into content areas addressing each of the five color sections of the intervention wheel.--leaf 5.

Community-Based Health Interventions Sally Guttmacher, Patricia Kelly Vana, Yumary Ruiz-Janecko, 2010-03-01

Community-Based Health Interventions covers the skills necessary to change health in a community setting through the reduction of disease, disease conditions, and risks to health, as well as create a supportive environment for the maintenance of the behavior changes. The first section provides background information about why interventions in communities are important, the history of several major community interventions, ethical issues in the design and implementation of interventions and the different types of interventions. The second section covers planning and activities needed to complete an intervention, along with the theoretical basis of interventions. The third section shows how to assess the needs and strengths of a particular community, gain community support, define the goals of an intervention and get started. This section also contains information on obtaining material and financial support and on strategies for continuing the intervention beyond its initial phase. The final section examines current work and problems encountered as well as projecting future trends. Each chapter includes practice exercises or activities useful to students learning to develop interventions at the population or community level, such as public health, social work and nursing.

Essentials of Nursing Leadership & Management Patricia Kelly, 2004 Essentials of Nursing Leadership & Management offers a concise and unique perspective on critical nursing leadership and management concepts.
