Student's Guide to Writing Dissertations and Theses in Tourism Studies and Related Disciplines Tim Coles, David Timothy Duval, Gareth Shaw, 2013-05-02 Around the world every year very many students have to complete dissertations or theses as part of their undergraduate or masters studies in tourism and related subjects. Often this substantial piece of self-directed work is the culmination of their programmes. More than just a means to consolidate their final grades, it is also an exciting chance to research a topic of their choosing and a potential gateway to more advanced study as well as job offers and future career paths. Yet for all these reasons, many students view the dissertation as a tricky challenge. This comprehensive book intends to take the stress and anxiety out of doing a dissertation in tourism studies and related disciplines. The process is examined from the germination of an idea to the submission and assessment of the final document. Written primarily for students conducting independent research for the first time, this book offers simple advice and a clear framework which students can adopt even in more advanced studies at masters and doctoral level. This book debunks popular myths, and aims to overcome common pitfalls. It focuses on the aims and objectives as the DNA of every dissertation. Rather than view it as a single, overwhelming project, the dissertation is presented as a series of more modest, manageable yet crucially inter-linked tasks that all students can successfully complete through careful preparation and effective time management. Dissertations are not to be underestimated and they demand great care and attention, but they can also be immensely rewarding and enriching experiences academically and personally. This 'jargon free' book is also written with overseas students specifically in mind, drawing directly on our overseas students' experiences. This valuable resource contains start of chapter learning objectives and end of chapter checklists, as well as numerous boxed case studies, to further help assist students through their dissertation.

With careful consideration, they explore proposal functions and parts, show how to build your study's chain of reasoning, and carefully review alternate study designs. Chapters are devoted to qualitative studies (sectioned into case studies, philosophical, and historical investigations); quantitative studies (sectioned into experimental, causal modeling, and meta-analysis studies), and mixed-method studies (sectioned into: sample survey, evaluation, development, and demonstration and action projects). Three extensively annotated proposals of former students provide examples of the guidance offered and illustrate common types of studies.

Design of a haptic factory simulation including an RFID system for the acquisition, processing and analysis of motion data Nikolaas Alexander Theissen,2015-02-04 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2015 in the subject Engineering - Computer Engineering, Rhine-Waal University of Applied Sciences, language: English, abstract: Companies need to adapt their product management with regard to variability, quality, availability and price to cope with demands for mass customization, efficiency or sustainability. These adaptations are implemented in form of changes of machinery, processes or philosophy. However the unpredictable benefit of a change is opposed by factors such as scarcity of resources, a lack of expertise and doubts. Therefore, this bachelor's thesis focuses on the development of a model factory that offers companies the alternative to simulate changes in their production management and investment in some of the latest technology on a smaller scale. The participants, who can be third parties and students, are introduced to principles and methods of lean production systems. The lean production system teaches to focus on the essentials of production to decrease the time between the order and the delivery, that is to say the time between the company's investment and the customer's payment. The knowledge about lean production systems is vital for every professional's working life in the field of industrial production. The model factory, Lean Game 4.0, is a mockup of production and logistic facilities of a fictitious versatile series engine manufacturer, the HSRW Engine Manufacturing Company. The participation in the simulation offers a varying number of players the opportunity to survey realistic industrial processes and equipment in a short lapse of time. The game is customized to fit different levels of previous knowledge and available time. Depreciative to the Industrie 4.0 that is the German term for the fourth industrial revolution, which in English is commonly referred to as Industrial Internet, the game uses synergies of the cooperation between machinery, information technology and human employees. The participants use a SICK radio frequency identification (RFID) system and G&G bulk material scales for the automated acquisition, processing and analysis of motion data. The present bachelor's thesis describes the planning, development and implementation of the Lean Game 4.0. For that purpose it contains information about the fundamentals of lean production systems, radio frequency identification and their utilization in the Lean Game 4.0. Finally the thesis provides recommendations and information on possible follow-up projects for the improvement of the Lean Game 4.0.
