Observing Teacher Identities through Video Analysis Amy Vetter, Melissa Schieble, 2015-09-25 Teaching is often seen as an identity process, with teachers constructing and enacting their identities through daily interactions with students, parents and colleagues. This volume explores how conducting video analysis helps teachers gain valuable perspectives on their own identities and improve classroom practice over time. This form of interactional awareness fosters reflection and action on creating classroom conditions that encourage equitable learning. The volume follows preservice English teachers as they examine video records of their practice during student teaching, and how the evidence impacts their development as literacy teachers of diverse adolescents. By applying an analytic framework to video analysis, the authors demonstrate how novice teachers use positioning theory to transform their own identity performance in the classroom. Education scholars, teachers and professional developers will greatly benefit from this unique perspective on teacher identity work.

The Routledge History of Social Protest in Popular Music Jonathan C. Friedman, 2013-07-04 The major objective of this collection of 28 essays is to analyze the trends, musical formats, and rhetorical devices used in popular music to illuminate the human condition. By comparing and contrasting musical offerings in a number of countries and in different contexts from the 19th century until today, The Routledge History of Social Protest in Popular Music aims to be a probing introduction to the history of social protest music, ideal for popular music studies and history and sociology of music courses.

Discourse, of Course Jan Renkema, 2009 Discourse, of Course comes after Jan Renkema's Introduction to Discourse Studies (2004) for undergraduates. The new book is a collection of twenty short papers. It is a capita selecta course and meant for graduate programs. The aim of this book is threefold: to present material for advanced courses in discourse studies; to unfold a stimulating display of research projects to future PhD students; to give an overview of new developments after the 2004 Introduction to Discourse Studies. This publication fulfills both the teacher's need for a state-of-the-art overview of the main topics in discourse, and the student's need to acquire standards for developing research plans in theses and dissertations. It gives a combination of approaches from very different schools in discourse studies, ranging from argumentation theory to genre theory, from the study of multimodal metaphors to cognitive approaches to coherence analysis. This book is not only meant to serve as a textbook, but also as a reference book for researchers who want an update for various main topics in the field.

An analysis of a sample of persuasive language Martin Luther King, Jr.: I Have a Dream Ulrike Miske, 2008-09-18 Seminar paper from the year 2006 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies - Linguistics, grade: 1,3, University of Birmingham, course: Semantics, language: English, abstract: The Civil Rights Movement in the United States of America between 1954 and 1968 aimed at abolishing public and private acts of racial discrimination against African Americans, especially in the southern states. In the course of the movement many sit-ins, freedom rides and several demonstrations were organised to show direct action. It was a time of mass mobilization, nonviolent resistance and civil disobedience of African American citizens. Backed up by local churches and grassroots organizations, the African Americans stood strong and united fighting for their cause. They wanted to bring about new acts that included racial dignity, economic and political self-sufficiency as well as freedom from white authority. One of the great leaders of the Civil Rights Movement was Martin Luther King, Jr., a baptist minister from Montgomery, Alabama. Travelling many million miles of the country, he organized protests and marches and spoke at demonstrations. Though Martin Luther King, Jr. had been arrested for his political actions many times, he always placed great emphasis on an organized, nonviolent protest against the racist system of southern segregation. Moreover, he wrote several books and articles on that matter. In 1964, King even received the Nobel Peace Prize for his leadership of the non-violent resistance to end segregation in the United States. One of the most important marches was the March on Washington D.C. on August 28, 1963. It was at the Lincoln Memorial where Martin Luther King, Jr. spoke to more than 200,000 people from around the United States. His address "I have a dream" in which he is talking about an integrated and unified America was to go down in history as one of the greatest speeches of all times. Semantically, this is a very interesting piece of persuasive writing. It is King's amazing choice of words and his metaphorical style of writing that must have electrified the masses in Washington D.C. just as it does today's readership. Moreover, it is interesting to look at his logic and values.

A Structural Analysis of the American Musical Theatre Between 1955 and 1965 Barbara Means Fraser,1982 The purpose of this study was to select a period in American history (1955-1965) and representative American musicals from the same period to compare the underlying values communicated through the American musical with the values within the American society. The ten year period was divided into three eras: 1955-1959 (The Eisenhower Years), 1960-1962 (The Kennedy Years), and 1963-1965 (a new Romanticism following the assassination of John Kennedy). Accompanying each of these eras was a randomly selected sample of American musicals and a selected sample of the longest running American musical of each year. The random sample between 1955 and 1965 includes: Once Upon a Mattress, The Music Man, Flower Drum Song, Li'l Abner, and West Side Story; between 1960 and 1962 includes: Do Re Mi, Mr. President, The Unsinkable Molly Brown, Bye Bye Birdie, and How to Succeed in Business without Really Trying; and between 1963 and 1965 includes: Skyscraper, Here's Love, 110 in the Shade, Man of La Mancha and Do I Hear a Waltz? The selected sample includes the following musicals: Damn Yankees, My Fair Lady, The Music Man, Flower Drum Song, The Sound of Music, The Fantasticks, How to Succeed in Business without Really Trying, A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, Fiddler on the Roof, and Man of La Mancha. A structural analysis of libretti and original Broadway or Off-Broadway cast's recordings revealed the values of the musical theatre world for comparison with the American values isolated by a collection of images, events, and themes from popular and historical documents. This study concluded that musicals are reflective of the American values of its era. This information and the process for discovering it should be useful to all producing artists of American musicals who may choose to adapt characters when negative values are being communicated or to emphasize positive values of the past. This study should help to make theatre artists realize that all dramatic creations communicate values; therefore artists and producers must be accountable for the values of the art they choose to practice.
