The Law of Contracts John Cassan Wait,2012-02 Purchase of this book includes free trial access to www.million-books.com where you can read more than a million books for free. This is an OCR edition with typos. Excerpt from book: 4. Designation of the Parties.? ? by and between (name of owner, company, board, city, university, I or other corporation)., of the City of Town of], County of .State of, party of the first part, and (name of contractor or company) of the City of, County of, State of, party of the second part. The parties of a contract are designated as party of the first part and party of the second part, the former being conventionally applied to the person who contracts to sell, to lease, or to have performed the subject-matter of the contract, and the latter title to the person agreeing to take or purchase the article or to perform the contract. These terms are frequently avoided by using instead the names of the parties, referring to them as the Said, the Said Contractor, the Said Owner, the Said Board, City, Company, University, etc. This avoids confusion and the danger of the parties forgetting to which party he or they belong. A man will hardly fail to recognize his own name or that he is a contractor, when he might not remember that he is the party of the second part. When reference is made to the parties as the City, Board, Company, etc., or as the Contractor or the Engineer, it is customary and prudent to insert a clause explaining who is intended and included within the terms, as in the following clauses: That whenever and wherever in this contract the phrase ' party of the second part/ or the word ' Contractor, ' or a pronoun in place of either of them is used, the same shall be taken and deemed to mean and intend the party of the second part to this agreement (his their] heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns). That whenever the word ' Engineer' is used in these specifications, or in this contract, it refers to and designates the Chief E...
