Educating Young Children with Autism Spectrum Disorders Erin E. Barton, Beth Harn, 2014-01-07 According to the CDC, one in fifty American children is diagnosed as having an autism spectrum disorder. This means more school-aged children are entering classrooms with ASDs and teachers are being called upon to help facilitate their learning. Educating

Young Children with Autism Spectrum Disorders is aimed at providing strategies for teachers, school counselors, and psychologists to help address the needs of children on the spectrum, as well as their families. Erin E. Barton and Beth Harn draw on current research and practices to discuss the possible causes of autism and to help prepare educators not only for teaching children in the classroom but also for providing families with the tools necessary to continue the educational process at home. Included are topics such as: Improving communication and socialization Developing instructive lessons Assessing students' progress Including families in educational goals Finding students' special interests and using those to help facilitate learning Managing challenging behavior And more Including forms, charts, and a range of classroom activities, this is the only resource you will need to gain the insight and tools for making a difference in the educational lives of young children with autism.

Comprehensive Models of Autism Spectrum Disorder Treatment Raymond G. Romanczyk, John McEachin, 2016-08-25 This book presents proceedings from the joint conference, Evidence and Rationales for Comprehensive Models of Autism Spectrum Disorder Treatment: Divergence and Convergence, sponsored by the Council on Autism Services and the Autism Partnership. Promoting Language for Learners with Autism Spectrum Disorder Jason C. Vladescu, April N. Kisamore, 2025-12-16
Promoting Language for Learners with Autism Spectrum Disorder: A Verbal Behavior Guide for Practitioners introduces the core principles of verbal behavior and provides practical, evidence-based strategies for teaching language skills to children with autism in applied settings. The book opens with a section that orients the reader to a functional approach to language, best practices for assessing verbal repertoires, and common models for arranging language-training environments. The second section focuses on teaching critical verbal operants and derived language skills. The final section addresses professional matters relevant to practitioners, including the importance of basic and translational research in verbal behavior, considerations related to diversity, and best practices for interdisciplinary collaboration. Grounded in the science of behavior analysis and aligned with Skinner's (1957) analysis of verbal behavior, this book equips professionals with tools to assess language, design effective teaching environments, and build essential repertoires like manding, tacting, and conversation skills. Intended for professionals and students alike, this text is broad enough to support graduate-level instruction and specific enough to serve as a valuable reference for practicing clinicians.

Effect of Natural Environment Training and Discrete Trial Training on Adaptive Behaviors Amelia Yanchik, 2021
Rising numbers in Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) diagnoses lead to concerns about resources and personnel to support these children in home and school settings. Early intervention and ABA therapy has been demonstrated to show the most beneficial outcomes for children diagnosed with ASD (Peters-Scheffer et al., 2011, Eikeseth et al., 2007). The literature has yet to review the differential effects Natural Environment Training (NET) and Discrete Trial Training (DTT) on adaptive skills. A sample of 110 children diagnosed with ASD or a Developmental Disorder between the ages of 16 and 35 months was collected. The participants either received DTT, NET, or both interventions (NET+ DTT). All participants received the Bayley Scales of Infant and Toddler Development™, Third Edition (Bayley™-3) Adaptive Subscale and the Verbal Behavior Milestones Assessment and Placement Program (VB-MAPP) Barriers Assessment at intake to be used as baseline measures and again when discharged from the program. Analysis of covariance with pretest scores as the covariate was conducted. A main effect for group for barriers and adaptive behaviors controlling for pretest scores was found ( $p = .001$ ,  $p = .001$ ). NET and NET+DTT conditions showed statistically significant improvements compared to the DTT condition ( $p = .000$ ,  $p = .000$ ). These results show that NET can increase adaptive skills in young children with ASD. These findings lay the groundwork for further research and refinement of behavioral interventions in young children in the area of Applied Behavior Analysis and early intervention, and protocols for teaching adaptive skills to toddlers.

Arabic Verbal Behavior Milestones Assessment and Placement Program Protocol Mark Sundberg, 2018-06-30
This is the Arabic translated version of The Verbal Behavior Milestones Assessment and Placement Program (VB-MAPP)

Individual Child Protocol. This protocol contains scoring forms and charts for each of the 170 milestones, the 24 language and learning barriers, the transition to less restrictive settings assessment, and the over 900 tasks contained in the task analysis of each skill area.

Transitioning Children with Autism from One-on-one Discrete-trial Settings to Special Education Classrooms Jennifer L. Freeman, 2016 The goal of an early intensive behavioral intervention (EIBI) program is to teach each child the skills necessary to make meaningful progress in less-restrictive environments (Fox, Dunlap & Crusing, 2002). However, few studies have detailed the steps necessary for a successful transition into these educational settings. We transitioned two children, who received 20 hours a week of one-on-one discrete-trial therapy and attended a half-day special education pre-school classroom, to a full-time educational setting. With the goal of aiding each during his/her transition, this study used the Verbal Behavior Milestones Assessment and Placement Program (VB-MAPP) (Sundberg, 2008), particularly the barriers and transitions assessments, to evaluate each child's strengths, deficits, and barriers. We also collaborated with their teachers to collect classroom expectations and recommended pre-requisite skills. Our intervention focused more on teaching commonly used classroom skills and barrier reduction, and less on the acquisition of additional academic skills. All targeted skills, except Cooper's transitions, transferred from the one-on-one setting to his/her new classroom after some followup classroom staff training. Also, we did intervene to decrease Cooper's flops during transitions in his kindergarten classroom.
