Don Dunstan Angela Woollacott,2019-08-19 The first major biography of Don Dunstan, one of the few state premiers to stride the national stage and make a lasting mark on Australian life. Don Dunstan was one of the most significant political figures of twentieth-century Australia. As Premier of South Australia, he blazed a trail of reform. But his influence reached far beyond his home state. He was seen as the architect of a new kind of Australian society, and his decade in office marked a golden age. This is the first comprehensive biography of a larger than life figure. Angela Woollacott recounts how he battled Adelaide's conservative establishment to win office for Labor, and then pioneered Aboriginal land rights, abolished the death penalty, supported women's rights, relaxed censorship and drinking laws and decriminalised homosexuality. He worked against the White Australia Policy, and was an ardent supporter of the arts and food. Although he was much loved by the public, Dunstan's career was marked by controversy and vilification, with scandal surrounding his personal relationships. Dunstan's life story helps us to appreciate just what a watershed era the 1960s and 1970s were in Australia, and to see how one small state could, for a time, lead a nation. 'A fitting tribute' - Penny Wong 'Whitlam and Dunstan were the Washington and Jefferson of modern Australian Labor politics.' - Mike Rann 'Angela Woollacott's biography captures what was so special about him.' - Maggie Beer

Adelaide Aborigines Fay Gale,Joy Wundersitz,1982 Situation of urban Aborigines compared with studies made in 1966, 1973 and with the non-Aboriginal population; deteriorating economic climate has eroded advantages that led to migration from rural areas; discusses survival strategies and the role of special Aboriginal services in maintaining minimal standard of living; includes wealth of statistical information on occupation, income, education level, unemployment, housing, residential groups, kinship and other networks and mobility.

Women's Business Chris Kenny,1996 The story behind the Hindmarsh Island affair. In 1994 opponents of the Hindmarsh Island bridge were facing defeat. Then an anthropologist told Aborigines who had been enlisted in the campaign: It would be nice if there was some Women's Business. Soon after, the cult of Women's Business was created by a small group of people, including a few members of the local Ngarrindjerri tribe. All of Australia believed them - except for many other Ngarrindjerri women.This is the story of those women in their struggle to tell the truth in the face of hostility from the government, the churches, the media, and even some anthropologists. The extraordinary narrative reveals for the first time how Australian institutions that we rely on to uphold truth and tolerance sought to denigrate and dismiss a group of Aboriginal women whistle blowers. It is an important story for anyone interested in the manipulation of Aboriginal culture for political ends, and for anyone who believes that reconciliation, in the words of Ngarrindjerri woman Beryl Kropinyeri, starts with the truth.
