Measurement in Health Psychology, volume II Paola Gremigni, Giulia Casu, Antonio de Padua Serafim, Victor Zaia, 2025-09-25 Health psychology is the investigation of psychological and behavioral processes in health, illness, and healthcare. It brings together biological, psychological, and social components to investigate the behavior of healthy or ill people and the decision-making processes that may influence the delivery of healthcare services. Several issues and factors are still understudied in health psychology. Psychological effects of the Covid-19 outbreaks, caregiving experiences, work-related stress and life-work balance, quality of life of sexual minorities, young generations' orientations and motivation for health, or impacts of the new media on people's mental health are just a few examples of phenomena that remain partially explained. A critical issue in health psychology is measurement. Researchers may indeed use measures to elucidate processes to advance theory and evidence, to gain a greater understanding of the observed phenomena, or to assess the effects of interventions delivered to improve health and healthcare outcomes.

Performance Testing, Cognition and Assessment University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate, 1996 This publication contains a selection of research papers presented at the 15th Annual Language Testing Research Colloquium. This publication contains a selection of research papers presented at the 15th Annual Language Testing Research Colloquium (LTRC). The Colloquium was jointly hosted by the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate (UCLES) in Cambridge and CITO in Arnhem in the Netherlands. At the Cambridge venue, the papers were presented on the theme of performance testing and at Arnhem, they covered aspects of communication in relation to cognition and assessment. A selection of papers has been made in order to achieve a balanced coverage of these themes. In particular, the research presented includes work on speaking and writing tests where the focus is on raters and tasks; the application of various statistical methods in language test validation; and issues related to language testing in specific contexts and with particular candidate groups.

How Workplace Behaviors Impact Mental Health: Does Diversity Matter? Vasiliki Eirini Chatzea, Dimitra Sifaki-Pistolla, Enkeleint A. Mechili, 2025-05-14 The recent unprecedented societal challenges along with the COVID-19 pandemic have opened the door to a new era for mental health at work. Today, more than ever provides an opportunity to highlight the mental health challenges that employees are facing due to their working conditions and occupational environments. Around the globe, it is well documented that promoting and establishing mentally healthy workplaces is a focal point. However, according to the literature, individuals of diverse identities and backgrounds (e.g., racial, or ethnic minorities, LGBTQ+ community, migrants/refugees, the Roma community, religiously diverse individuals, people of lower economic/social status, pregnant women, etc.) are presenting an increased risk of discrimination and stigma, leading to major adverse effects on their mental health. Where mental health conditions can begin and worsen in the workplace due to occupational conditions and behaviors, the impact of this continues outside of the workplace, and can severely impact an individual's overall quality of life. This Research Topic aims to offer a holistic insight into the current state of mental health conditions/disorders among employees of diverse or minority groups before, during and post the COVID-19 pandemic. This collection not only aims to capture the extent of the mental health impact, and report on common work-related mental health disorders (e.g., depression, stress, distress, anxiety, burnout, low well-being, poor quality of life, etc.) amongst these populations, but to open the discussion towards addressing and tackling the inequalities and stigma associated with protected characteristics in workplace environments and to propose preventive measures/interventions to enhance workplace resilience, and ensure that mental health is upheld for all both in and outside of the workplace. In addition, mapping out the current issues and needs by providing data and policy measures is crucial in meeting the United Nations 3.4 Universal Health Coverage goal regarding promoting populations' mental health and well-being.
