(Sub)Urban Sexscapes Paul Maginn, Christine Steinmetz, 2014-10-10 (Sub)Urban Sexscapes brings together a collection of theoretically-informed and empirically rich case studies from internationally renowned and emerging scholars highlighting the contemporary and historical geographies and regulation of the commercial sex industry. Contributions in this edited volume examine the spatial and regulatory contours of the sex industry from a range of disciplinary perspectives—urban planning, urban geography, urban sociology, and, cultural and media studies—and geographical contexts—Australia, the UK, US and North Africa. In overall terms, (Sub)urban Sexscapes highlights the mainstreaming of commercial sex premises—sex shops, brothels, strip clubs and queer spaces—and products—sex toys, erotic literature and pornography—now being commonplace in night time economy spaces, the high street, suburban shopping centres and the home. In addition, the aesthetics of commercial and alternative sexual practices—BDSM and pornography—permeate the (sub)urban landscape via billboards, newspapers and magazines, television, music videos and the Internet. The role of sex, sexuality and commercialized sex, in contributing to the general character of our cities cannot be ignored. In short, there is a need for policy-makers to be realistic about the historical, contemporary and future presence of the sex industry. Ultimately, the regulation of the sex industry should be informed by evidence as opposed to moral panics.  Winner of the Planning Institute of Australia (WA) 2015 Award for Excellence in Cutting Edge Research and Teaching ***

The Politics of Prostitution Joyce Outshoorn, 2004-01-08 The most effective way to deal with prostitution has always been hotly debated by governments and women's movements alike. Feminists want it abolished or regulated as sex work; governments have to safeguard public health and order. This book, first published in 2004, shows how women's movements in Western Europe, North America and Australia have affected politics on prostitution and trafficking of women since the 1970s, asking what made them successful in some countries but a failure in others. It also assesses whether government institutions to advance the status of women - so-called women's policy agencies - have played a key role in achieving policy outcomes favourable to movement demands. Written by an international team of experts and based on original sources, all chapters follow the same framework to ensure comparability. The final chapter offers an overall comparison identifying what makes women's movements successful and women's agencies effective, presenting the case for 'state feminism'.

Taking the crime out of sex work Gillian Abel, Lisa Fitzgerald, Catherine Healy, 2010-05-19 New Zealand was the first country in the world to decriminalise all sectors of sex work. This book provides an in-depth look at New Zealand's experience of decriminalisation. It provides first-hand views and experiences of this policy from the point of view of those involved in the sex industry, as well as people involved in developing, implementing, researching and reviewing the policies. Presenting an example of radical legal reform in an area of current policy debate it will be of interest to academics, researchers and postgraduates as well as policy makers and activists.

Regulating Sex / Work Jane Scoular, Teela Sanders, 2010-03-29 Regulating Sex/Work: From Crime Control to Neo-liberalism? addresses the rise in sexual commerce and consumption by challenging traditional responses and offering a fresh approach to sex industry regulation Examines different forms of sex regulation by utilizing examples from a range of sex markets in the UK, France, USA, Australia, and India Theorizes the apparent paradox that the increase in punitive approaches to regulating the sex industry is fueling a rise in supply, demand, and diversification of the sex industry

Women, Drugs and Policy in Sydney, London, and Amsterdam Margaret J. Sargent,1992 This book comprises accounts of historical and contemporary drug policy in Australia, the UK and the Netherlands. The lives of women drug consumers are described in their own words. Their experiences living in three cities with different drug policies, Sydney, London and Amsterdam, are compared and the work of drug agencies is reviewed. Women are seen as different from men in consumption patterns, in their perceptions of the drug scene, in problems with drugs and needs in overcoming these problems. The differences are located in women's position in the social structure of economic and gender relations, and in social practices used to teach women to be second class citizens. These relations and practices are more intense in the drug and sex industries, which are seen as associated with men's capitalist interests, and with masculinization through power and violence.

Egger,Lucy Watchirs Smith,Karen Schneider,Handan Wand,John M. Kaldor,Marcus Y. Chen,Christopher K. Fairley,Sepehr Tabrizi,Kirby Institute,New South Wales. Ministry of Health,2012 This report reviews the nature of the sex industry in New South Wales, to better inform legislative approaches to prostitution in the state. It looks at the size and structure of the sex industry, the health of sex workers and use of clinical and health promotion services, owner and management perceptions of sex industry conditions, current laws and policing regarding prostitution, and local government planning responses. Based on the findings, the report presents recommendations for sector reform, including the alternative approaches of licensing and decriminalisation.
