Multiple Muscle Systems Jack M. Winters, Savio L-Y. Woo, 2012-12-06 The picture on the front cover of this book depicts a young man pulling a fishnet, a task of practical relevance for many centuries. It is a complex task, involving load transmission throughout the body, intricate balance, and eye head-hand coordination. The quest toward understanding how we perform such tasks with skill and grace, often in the presence of unpredictable perturbations, has a long history. However, despite a history of magnificent sculptures and drawings of the human body which vividly depict muscle activity and interaction, until more recent times our state of knowledge of human movement was rather primitive. During the past century this has changed; we now have developed a considerable database regarding the composition and basic properties of muscle and nerve tissue and the basic causal relations between neural function and biomechanical movement. Over the last few decades we have also seen an increased appreciation of the importance of musculoskeletal biomechanics: the neuromotor system must control movement within a world governed by mechanical laws. We have now collected quantitative data for a wealth of human movements. Our capacity to understand the data we collect has been enhanced by our continually evolving modeling capabilities and by the availability of computational power. What have we learned? This book is designed to help synthesize our current knowledge regarding the role of muscles in human movement. The study of human movement is not a mature discipline.

New Trends on System Science and Engineering H. Fujita,S.-F. Su,2015-06-23 System science and engineering is a field that covers a wide spectrum of modern technology. A system can be seen as a collection of entities and their interrelationships, which forms a whole greater than the sum of the entities and interacts with people, organisations, cultures and activities and the interrelationships among them. Systems composed of autonomous subsystems are not new, but the increased complexity of modern technology demands ever more reliable, intelligent, robust and adaptable systems to meet evolving needs. This book presents papers delivered at the International Conference on System Science and Engineering (ICSSE2015), held in Morioka, Japan, in July 2015. Some of the topics covered here include: systems modeling, tools and simulation; cloud robotics and computing systems; systems safety and security; smart grid, human systems and industrial organization and management; and novel applications of systems engineering and systems architecture. Capturing as it does the latest state-of-the-art and challenges in system sciences and its supporting technology, this book will be of interest to all those involved in developing and using system science methodology, tools and techniques

EVALUACIÓN FISIOLÓGICA DEL DEPORTISTA Howard A. Wenger,Howard J. Green,2005-10-26 Los avances acerca del conocimiento, tecnología y técnicas de entrenamiento que han tenido lugar en los últimos años han propiciado la elaboración de este libro. El objetivo primordial de la obra es explicar cómo diseñar y llevar a cabo programas de evaluación, cómo desarrollar protocolos de evaluación específicos al deporte, las instrucciones para la administrar las distintas pruebas y cómo interpretar resultados de forma que se puedan prescribir programas de entrenamiento dirigidos a que los deportistas alcancen un rendimiento máximo. Para ello, los capítulos del libro se centran en la evaluación de la fuerza, la flexibilidad, la potencia aeróbica y anaeróbica, la composición corporal y la antropometría. Un capítulo concreto se ocupa de la evaluación del estado de salud del deportista dirigido a aquellos médicos que crean conveniente planificar los exámenes médicos de los deportistas a su cargo para que coincida con su evaluación fisiológica. El último capítulo propone un modelo a seguir para la supervisión de la adaptación del deportista al entrenamiento. Uno de los temas en que insiste el libro es el de que las pruebas deben ser específicas al deporte que se desea practicar. Este libro está dirigido a científicos que se encargan de la evaluación y supervisión del deportista de alto rendimiento, a directores técnicos de organismos deportivos, a entrenadores y a deportistas. Asimismo, debido a la cantidad de información teórica incluida en cada capítulo, este libro es un texto de referencia muy aconsejable para cualquier curso de estudiantes de fisiología del ejercicio o medición y evaluación. Los autores, J. Duncan Mac Dougall, Howard A. Wenger y Howard J. Green, son tres conocidos fisiólogos canadienses miembros, respectivamente, del Departments of Physical Education and Medicine in the McMaster University, School of Physical Education in the University of Victoria, Department of Kinesiology in the University of Waterloo.
