The Routledge Handbook of Language Education Curriculum Design Peter Mikan, Ilona Wallace, 2019-12-23 Curriculum design options cover a continuum from regional and school-based programs to national and international frameworks. How does policy speak to practice? What have teacher-researchers discovered through in-classroom studies? Where do you begin to describe or measure 'effective' language education curriculum design? The Routledge Handbook of Language Education Curriculum Design presents a comprehensive collection of essays on these issues by 31 established practitioners and new researchers. Informed by experienced scholarship and fresh studies, this handbook shares international perspectives on language education from policy and curriculum to teacher training and future directions. The handbook addresses language education curriculum design across five sections: Language curriculum design: perspectives, policies and practices Designs across the curriculum Curriculum designs in language education Curriculum resources, evaluation and assessment Teacher education, research and future projects With contributions from Australia, Brazil, Indonesia, Switzerland, Timor-Leste and more, the handbook represents the breadth of research into and the global implications for sound language education curriculum design. It considers equally the needs of students and policy makers from urban metropolises and remote communities. It is designed to reinvigorate discussions about education policy, curriculum management and the role of teacher-researchers.

Functional Grammatics Mary Macken-Horarik, Kristina Love, Carmel Sandiford, Len Unsworth, 2017-10-03 This book provides a re-conceptualization of grammar in a period of change in the communication landscape and widening disciplinary knowledge. Drawing on resources in systemic functional linguistics, the book envisions a 'functional grammatics' relevant to disciplinary domains such as literary study, rhetoric and multimodality. It re-imagines the possibilities of grammar for school English through Halliday's notion of grammatics. Functional Grammatics is founded on decades of research inspired by systemic functional linguistics, and includes studies of grammatical tools useful to teachers of English, research into visual and multimodal literacies and studies of the genre-grammar connection. It aims to be useful to the interpretation and composition of texts in school English, portable in design across texts and contexts and beneficial for language development. The book will be of interest to researchers and teacher educators, as well as undergraduate and postgraduate students and practicing teachers committed to evidence-based professional development.

Understanding Reading Comprehension Wayne Tennent, 2025-11-05 Reading comprehension is a vital part of literacy that all primary school teachers need to understand. Drawing from educational and psychological research, this book offers a detailed analysis of how reading comprehension happens combined with practical teaching strategies for the classroom. This heavily revised second edition explores the underlying linguistic and cognitive processes that support comprehension, from inference making to the role of metacognition. It builds on this procedural knowledge to examine text selection, classroom pedagogy and how to assess comprehension. This is essential reading for primary English modules on initial teacher education courses, including university-based (PGCE, BA w/QTS, BEd) and school-based (SCITT, Teach First) routes into teaching, and also for current teachers wishing to further develop their knowledge.

The Triumph of Managerialism? Anna Yeatman, Bogdan Costea, 2018-10-16 This collection presents a critical dialogue on managerialist forms of government between philosophy, political thought, organisational and management theory. The volume brings together essays that are concerned with technologies of government that are articulated as different iterations of managerialism. The hallmark of managerialist discourse is value, considered as a quantifiable abstraction, where the intention is to always 'add value'. The central question addressed here by a team of international expert authors from across a range of disciplines is this: in what ways has this abstraction of value impacted on the substantive work and ethical integrity of government and the public sector, and, more broadly, of the professions (including that of management itself)? Has it displaced this work, or simply recast it? The volume addresses audiences in social sciences, philosophy, management, business, and organisational studies.

National Assessment Program Literacy and Numeracy, 2014 In 2012, the Australian Government Department of Education funded the Australian Curriculum, Assessment and Reporting Authority (ACARA) to implement research to assist decision-making with regards to transitioning the National Assessment Program â Literacy and Numeracy (NAPLAN) from paper-based form to computer (online) assessment. Over the past three years, ACARA and other investigators have conducted an ongoing research program to further develop and enhance the online NAPLAN test mode. This report describes the most recent research in this series of studies â the motivation-related factors and effects of online NAPLAN testing in the numeracy domain. This research has shown that motivation is a relevant factor in studentsâ performance in NAPLAN, the effects of fixed and branched online NAPLAN approaches, and studentsâ subjective experience of the online NAPLAN test. The findings shed further light on the effects of adaptive online testing and extend current understanding beyond NAPLAN performance outcomes to the important area of student motivation. An Evaluation of Automated Scoring of NAPLAN Persuasive Writing ,2015 The National Assessment and Surveys Online Program (NASOP), funded by the Australian Government, was designed to support the delivery of the National Assessment Program (NAPLAN and NAP Sample) online. ACARA developed a comprehensive research program to address a range of transition issues, including test design and impacts on student performance, measurement and reporting. The research program consisted of a number of discrete but interdependent studies: a pilot study (2012), a trialling study (2013) and a development study (2014). Key to the validity of this study is whether students were able to demonstrate their writing ability via the computer. Invigilator observations and follow -up discussions (âcognitive interviewsâ) with students confirmed that students were able to complete the writing task within the allotted time, without being unduly constrained by level of keyboarding skill. The purpose of the research presented in this paper is to explore the capacity of automated essay scoring systems to replicate human marking of NAPLAN persuasive essays using the persuasive writing rubric.
