Designing the Future Ann Kaiser, 2019-09-13 No matter the subject or grade, giving students engineering design process challenges encourages creativity, communication, innovation, and collaboration. In Designing the Future, author Ann Kaiser outlines how to enhance -- not increase -- what you are already teaching by implementing the engineering design process. Throughout the book, you will find more than 25 easy-entry, low-risk activities and projects you can begin incorporating into existing classwork. Use the engineering design process for students to transform creative and critical-thinking classroom activities: Explore the engineering design process (EDP) and unpack its stages: problem definition, research, brainstorming, prototyping, testing, and optimizing. Understand how incorporating engineering for students creates a project-based learning environment that encourages essential 21st century skills, including creativity, innovation, and critical thinking. Empower students to embrace the fundamentals of engineering design thinking, including: there is always more to learn, your solution will create problems, and there is no one right answer. Learn how to develop and adapt engineering design process projects for various grade levels and disciplines. Receive reflection tools that will empower you to revise and re-engineer activities and projects. Incorporate elements of engineering and STEAM education lesson plans into your current classroom content. Contents: Introduction Part I Chapter 1: Building an Engineering Design Culture Chapter 2: Deconstructing the Engineering Design Process Chapter 3: Designing Projects Part II Chapter 4: Starting With Activities That Support Engineering Thinking and Skills Chapter 5: Introducing Projects for Elementary School Chapter 6: Introducing Projects for Middle and High School Part III Chapter 7: Reflecting On, Revising, and Optimizing Your Curriculum Epilogue Appendix A: Action Plan Summary Appendix B: Challenge Creation Appendix C: Engineering Notebook Forms References and Resources Index

CyberLit Marilyn Dover Newman,2004 Elementary school media specialists and teachers routinely use children's picture books in their lessons. These books add depth and vitality to the curriculum because they are written and illustrated by some of the world's most gifted writers and artists. Yet, educators are finding it increasingly harder to insert this pleasant and important activity into the busy school day due to increased pressures to improve test scores, to implement a standards-driven curriculum, and to stay abreast of new technologies to deliver instruction. This book helps educators continue to incorporate literature into the school day in spite of these obstacles. CyberLit is a book for those who work with, or teach others who work with, children in the primary grades. It is for those who use trade books to supplement and enhance health, science, creative writing, history, geography, reading, math, language arts, character education, multicultural studies, holidays, citizenship, and the fine arts. It's for those who love children's literature and book illustration. With this book, you no longer need to get lost in cyberspace! The information has already been searched, collected, assessed, and compiled. Easily accessible and at your fingertips, this directory can help you to get biographical information about authors and illustrators, and to learn how they get ideas for stories, how illustrations are created, how to extend the books into the curriculum, and where to find time-saving lesson plans and book-related activities for classroom projects and units. These outstanding websites of children's authors, illustrators, and storybook characters were selected based on their educational value and for the fact that they contain a minimum of commercialization. They are exemplary examples of authors, publishers, and scholars who understand and acknowledge the roles of teachers and librarians. Like little gems in cyberspace, they go beyond the ordinary content for busy educators.

Live, Love and Learn Laurie Lind Makin,2013-12-01 In the first six years of life, children are learning to listen, speak, read, write and use technology. Much of this learning occurs informally, through everyday interactions between children, and between children and adults. In fact, it is almost impossible to overstate the role of family, especially parents and grandparents, in nurturing, supporting and influencing young children's language and literacy development. Live, Love and Learn provides an intriguing and highly accessible guide to how young children learn and how you can support their learning. Early childhood academic, mother and grandmother, Laurie Lind Makin, explains the principles of observation and engagement, how to follow and extend children's own interests and how to build their understanding, communication skills and self-confidence. Real-world scenarios, sample dialogue and practical activities all highlight the critical importance of the home environment in enhancing children's capacity to learn. This unique family resource is designed to: provide an overview of literacy learning in the infant and toddler years, the preschool years and the early school years identify key milestones and indicators for concern at each level discuss the vital impact of technology on young children's learning demonstrate how you can create opportunities for language and literacy learning to be integrated into everyday life without 'hot housing' or pressuring children. Recognising the place of child care and early years schooling in young children's lives, suggestions are also provided for communication between families and early childhood staff and teachers, at specific intervals throughout the book.
