Neuroaesthetics: Exploring Beauty Within And Around Us Yan Bao, Ernst Poppel, Richu Wang, Semir Zeki, 2024-12-13

Neuroaesthetics has become an important new field in the sciences bringing together researchers from cognitive science (as a general term including brain science, psychology, anthropology, ethology, artificial intelligence), the humanities (including linguistics, philosophy), and the arts (artists from the visual arts, music and poetry). Thus, neuroaesthetics is a prime example of successful interdisciplinarity. In the book Neuroaesthetics: Exploring Beauty Within and Around Us we distinguish and represent in several articles two different kinds of interdisciplinarity: 'Horizontal interdisciplinarity' brings together in a complementary way different fields like (as an example) psychology, linguistics and poetry. 'Vertical interdisciplinarity' refers to research on data generating mechanisms like (as an example) neural activities in the brain being associated with subjective experiences of 'beauty'. In the book articles refer to the visual arts ('art in space'), to 'faces in art', to poetry and music ('art in time'), and to general ideas (bridging art and science). This is a unique collection of articles with a broad scope.

Beauty: Illustrated Chiefly by an Analysis and Classification of Beauty in Woman Alexander Walker, 2021-04-25 In

Beauty: Illustrated Chiefly by an Analysis and Classification of Beauty in Woman, Alexander Walker embarks on an ambitious exploration of aesthetic principles, examining the intricate relationship between beauty and femininity. The text deftly combines philosophical inquiry with art criticism, employing a methodical analytical prose that reflects the Enlightenment ideals of reason and classification. Walker meticulously categorizes the various attributes that define beauty while simultaneously challenging the reader's perceptions of aesthetics, particularly in the context of gender. His illustrations and analyses set a precedent for discussing beauty not just as a superficial trait but as a profound philosophical and cultural notion. Alexander Walker, a noted Scottish critic and aesthete of the 19th century, drew from his extensive background in literature and the visual arts, which undoubtedly shaped his perspectives on beauty. His contemporary influences, alongside the burgeoning interest in naturalism and empirical observation, propelled him to reevaluate how women's beauty was perceived and critiqued within society. This pursuit reflects his desire to elevate the discourse surrounding female beauty and advocate for a deeper understanding of its implications. Beauty: Illustrated Chiefly by an Analysis and Classification of Beauty in Woman is essential reading for anyone interested in aesthetics, gender studies, and art history. Walker's insightful arguments challenge traditional views and encourage readers to engage critically with the concepts of beauty, making it a groundbreaking work that resonates with modern sensibilities. In this enriched edition, we have carefully created added value for your reading experience: - Hand-picked Memorable Quotes shine a spotlight on moments of literary brilliance. - Interactive footnotes clarify unusual references, historical allusions, and archaic phrases for an effortless, more informed read.

Studies in the Psychology of Sex Havelock Ellis, 1905

Beauty in Architecture Nele De Raedt, Maarten Delbeke, 2025-09-18 Beauty in Architecture brings together the views of architects, artists, critics, historians, and philosophers to explore how beauty can again become an integral part of discussions about architecture. Despite its recent resurgence in the public debate about the built environment, the notion of beauty remains problematic and contested in critical discourse about architecture. When the topic is addressed, it is either treated with suspicion, historicized or contextualised, or substituted with other –often equally problematic– terms, such as order, legibility, atmosphere, or character. This collection brings together voices from theory, scholarship, and practice to show that a conversation about beauty in architecture is necessary, not only because the general public speaks easily and frequently about beauty in architecture, but also because much can be gained from taking it seriously. Bringing together a diverse range of perspectives, the essays reflect on the themes, categories, and concepts that should be part of such a conversation and show how talking about beauty engages important reflections on its ontology and what it involves: values, communities, collectives and shared histories, environment, identity, and political or legal mechanisms and institutions. A must read for designers and theorists alike, this volume allows readers to discover new strategies and concepts to foster the discussion of beauty in architecture.
