The Use of Ontologies in Practice Kevin Rudolph,2015-06-10 Research Paper (undergraduate) from the year 2015 in the subject Computer Science - Applied, grade: 1,0, Technical University of Berlin, course: AIM1: Advanced Information Management I Heterogeneous and Distributed Information Systems, language: English, abstract: Most of today's information systems are highly heterogeneous and complex. High efforts and costs are put into interlinking systems to let systems communicate to each other and thus overcoming heterogeneity. The semantic web plays a significant role in the way it covers and links knowledge, making the web's content understandable for machine-to-machine interactions. Hereby, ontologies serve as a technology to cover, infer and verify knowledge and making it available to accomplish a common understanding among participating agents. This paper describes how ontologies are used in practice to support the overcoming of heterogeneity in information systems. After a revision of basic semantic technologies and standards like OWL and SPARQL

we discuss a variety of methods and tools of the semantic web. In more detail, we investigate ontology editors, especially the Protégé tool as a well-established open-source application to create, edit and share ontologies. At last, we discover a variety of practical applications where ontologies are of high use.

Costs and benefits of the optimisation of data flow in theory and practice of information management Anne Wolkodaw,2006-09-28 Diploma Thesis from the year 2006 in the subject Business economics - Business Management, Corporate Governance, grade: 1,0, Euro-Business-College Jena, language: English, abstract: Some things are as they are and they have worked well all the time. People are used to them. Sometimes they know, that things could work better, sometimes they don't. One important thing in small and medium sized enterprises is communication and the flow of information. This sometimes can be crucial to the surviving of such firms. Although, some organisations know that they have a deficit in the communication or information process, they are not able to initiate any change. This diploma has the aim to point out this critical issue and to show how practices of communication and data flow can be improved. Firstly, the author gives an overview about theoretical approaches and than she will analyse the dataflow for a commercial organisation of the middle class. Here, it is important to say, that the measurement of the effects of such an optimisation is hard to realise, as effects can't be measured on numerical or monetary scale. The main concern of this diploma is not the theoretical explanation of types of data banks or the programming of such a data bank, which common literature describes. It is rather the establishing of more efficient methods to deal with the daily business and at least not to loose the basis of business, namely, the delivering of value to customers. Therefore, this diploma will present a probably total different perspective of this theme in practice, because of the individual tailoring, adaptation and transformation of theory to a practical solution.

A Wisdom Of Age Jacinta Parsons,2025-06-04 An uplifting, inspiring book about the wisdom of older women - and what we can learn from them to rewrite the story of the second half of our lives. 'I want to hear the wisdom from women about where we really live, deep in our hearts ... I want to hear the wisdom about our invisibility, our imaginations, our traumas, our joys, our changing roles, our loves and our death. How do we age in this body so that we can launch full tilt to the sky even as it wrinkles and slows and stiffens and breaks? It's my intention with this book to work out how to age with the requisite love and rebellion that it surely requires. Hopefully, with the right kind of revolution, we can set the course for generations to come.' A Wisdom of Age was sparked by the many conversations Jacinta Parsons has had recently with older women right around the country about the experience of being a woman and ageing. Over the course of these encounters, it became clear to Jacinta that the conversation about ageing for women is alive and bubbling with a kind of excitement - that is, women are ready to do ageing differently. For this book, Jacinta mines wisdom directly from those who know how to do it well, those older women who say, This is what feels good. Capturing the brewing tone of revolution that sits in the hearts of middle-aged and older women, A Wisdom of Age tells a different story about ageing - a story about reclaiming the fierce girl we have inside us; about an unapologetic taking up of space; about speaking out and re-finding our confidence; and finally, about wisdom. PRAISE FOR A WISDOM OF AGE 'I know her deep wisdom and compassion as a friend; as a reader's companion her work is a gift.' Virginia Trioli 'This beautifully written book had me laughing, crying and at the end, utterly transformed. It has changed my perspective on ageing and inspired me to live and think about it in a completely different way. Adored it!' Myf Warhurst 'Jacinta's elders infuse us with defiance and optimism, love and courage. These aren't just lessons.. they've given us a ladder to keep climbing in strength and singing out to all the women coming up behind us. Old age? Bring. it. On!' Lisa Millar 'Oh thank God. A book about ageing that isn't about avoiding it. Full of real wisdom, beautifully expressed.' Holly Wainwright
