Russell Kelfer, Marianne Richmond, Brownlow Publishing Company

Wait Russell Kelfer, Marianne Richmond, Brownlow Publishing Company, 2002-12 Every once in a while, a rare poetic treasure emerges and speaks to us in a profound and meaningful way*the kind of piece you keep close by to share its gentle wisdom. For more than 20 years, Russell Kelfer's inspirational poem, Wait, has ministered to countless individuals, yet the author's identity was always unknown*until now. Russell Kelfer speaks to our human desire to hear God's plan for our life and our subsequent frustration when we feel we are met with His silence. What we often hear as God's no, however, is God's wait. Wait*for My timing. Wait for Me to work in you. Wait while you learn to trust Me. Noted designer, Marianne Richmond, found the poem and brought it to life with her insightful illustrations to create this unique inspirational gift book.

Throw Open the Door Marcia Fredline, 2012-11-05 Throw Open the Door is a story of ordinary women whom we find being used by God in extraordinary ways. The women and men in these stories are examples of everyday saints and angels. Women can be encouraged by these stories to open the door for the Lord to come in and help them discover their gifts and potential as part of a greater plan.

Wait Russell L. Kelfer, 2008-01-08 Most people, at some time or another, seek God's plan for our life and subsequently feel frustrated when we are seemingly met with His silence. This title shows that we must wait for God's encouragement at uncertain times.

Letters to Russell Isabel Finn, 2016-02-09 A collection of poems I wrote for the love of my life.

Earlier Poems Franz Wright, 2009-03-25 The haunting collection of poems that gathers the first four books of Pulitzer winner Franz Wright under one cover, where "fans old and new will find a feast amid famine" (Publishers Weekly), and discover how large this poet's gift was from the start.

All for the Wolves Peter Russell, 1984

The Reason why the Closet-man is Never Sad Russell Edson, 1977 In this new collection of prose poems, Russell Edson presents, beneath a sprightly surface, vignettes that are surprisingly pained, dark, animistic. As in his earlier works, Edson undermines our familiar descriptions of the world and restores it to its strangeness and lyricism. This volume can be read either as an anthology of black humor or as a series of cosmological and visionary tales--From back cover.

Beautiful False Things Irving Feldman, 2000 This tenth collection of Irving Feldman's poems extends what readers and critics have long recognized as a body of work singular in its lyric, visionary, even prophetic intensity; its extravagant wit; its powerful storytelling; and its variety of voices and range of feeling - playful, tender, ardent, biting, enthralled. Here, among the major poems of Beautiful False Things, the stand-up comic Larry Sunrise of Funny Bones duels with death in Florida; in Oedipus Host, Oedipus arrives from his millennia-long trek to host a TV talk show; and the plucky feminist heroine of Heavenly Muse visits yet another barely worthy male poet. In the tragicomic title poem, translation comes to stand for the dilemmas of expression in a culture that sucks up language and spews it back.

Complete Poems A. M. Klein, 1990-01-01 This collection includes all Klein's poetry, both original works and translations from Hebrew, Yiddish, Aramaic, and Latin. Many of them, coming from all periods of his careers, have never been published.

What'll We Do with this Life? Karl Krolow, 1993 Karl Krolow, considered by many the dean of contemporary German poets, has had a rich and varied career as a prose writer, essayist, and translator as well. He is the author of more than thirty volumes of poetry, each with a life and mind of its own. This selection aims to be as representative as possible of the four major decades of his life as a poet. In the forty years that What'll We Do With This Life? covers, Krolow ranges across many subjects and themes, all the while absorbing and articulating them by means of a lyric voice, or on occasion voices, that is at once abstract and detached, but so concentrated and focused that what is observed and communicated becomes intimate, almost voyeuristic accounts of our private lives - which turn out to be the sum and substance of our public lives as well. In poems Krolow calls half-open doors, he heightens our readiness to respond to life's exigencies, to which we are not quite privy, but which affect our lives deeply. His basic stylistic mode, part of the century's parlando tradition, issues from a deep private center that wishes to connect, if only briefly, often with one other human at a time. The paradox is that the more detached the poems seem, the more intimately the reader is affected, caught exposed in the blaze of the imagined moment.

Krolow puts it this way: Poems are for those waiting for lightning. Krolow also observes that in trying to make the poem of almost nothing, he perhaps stands a chance of having it be about everything; he is fond of quoting Flaubert in this regard, who most wanted to write a book about nothing. But even as Krolow's embarrassed I tries to escape our direct attention, we reach, through the poem and its relation to our own internal monologues, human images that connect us all. Today, approaching eighty and not in the best health, Krolow remains poetically and politically involved, taking a lively interest in the emergence of a united Germany, with all the challenges that presupposes. As a critic, a reader, a judge of literary competitions, and as president of The Germany Academy of Language and Literature (1972-75), he has been generous in his ways with the talents of others, doing much to ensure that we will leave literary descendants. Almost no living German writer, and many another writer beyond the borders of Germany, has been without Krolow's direct or indirect support.
