Stream of Consciousness Melvin J. Friedman, 1955

Stream of Consciousness in the Modern Novel Robert Humphrey, Humphrey, Margaret, 1954-01-01 Robert Humphrey seeks to provide a precise understanding of stream of consciousness in literature- its purpose, its techniques, and its significance. Through an examination of the work of James Joyce, Virginia Woolf, Dorothy Richardson, William Faulkner, and other contemporaries he points to the various means novelists have used to express the inchoate psychic life of their character. He discusses at length the purpose and usefulness of free association- the chief device for depicting and controlling both the movement and the privacy of consciousness. His treatment of what he terms cinematic devices, such as montage, flash-back, fade-out, is particularly illuminating. In his discussion of forms Mr. Humphrey analyses the various structural patterns that stream-of-consciousness writers have used in lieu of conventional plots and shows how they have managed the unities of space and time. This book makes challenging reading for the serious students of literature and should prove especially to writers. -Publisher

Modernist Fiction Randall Stevenson, 1992-09-24 To many writers of the early twentieth century, modernism meant not only the reshaping or abandonment of tradition but also an interest in psychology and in new concepts of space, time, art, and language. Randall Stevenson's important new analysis of the genre presents a lucid, comprehensive introduction to modernist fiction, covering a wide range of writers and works. Drawing on narrative theory and cultural history, Stevenson offers fresh insights into the work of such important modernists as Henry James, Joseph Conrad, Ford Madox Ford, D.H. Lawrence, Wyndham Lewis, Dorothy Richardson, May Sinclair, Virginia Woolf, and James Joyce. In addition he discusses the work of Marcel Proust, an important figure in the development of modernism in Europe.
