Nutrition in Infancy Ronald Ross Watson, George Grimble, Victor R. This volume covers a wide range of topics that support wellness in infants through the prevention and treatment of infectious diseases, malnutrition, and developmental and genetic abnormalities. A variety of chapters deal with nutrients for infants with disabilities, surgery, and other special needs. Special emphasis is provided for clinicians treating the millions of children in developing countries whose death is promoted by undernutrition or malnutrition. The next sections discuss the health benefits of supplementation and breast feeding and methods to improve use of breast feeding and its duration. In Nutrition in Infancy: Volume 1, all of these facets of nutrition and nutritional therapy are covered in a precise and practical way. The latest developments in diagnostic procedures and nutritional support are also included. Application of WHO Growth Standards in the UK Joint SACN/RCPCH Expert Group on Growth Standards,Great Britain. Scientific Advisory Committee on Nutrition,Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health,2008 The World Health Organization published new child growth standards for infants and children up to the age of 5 years in April 2006 (ISBN 9789241546935). These describe the growth of children living in a well supported health environment in six different countries. This report to the Department of Health advises on the applicability of the new standards for children aged 0-5 years in the UK. There are nine recommendations including: exclusive breastfeeding to the age of six months with continued breastfeeding as part of a progressively varied diet is recommended for all infants; the WHO pattern of slower weight gain between 4 to 24 months could potentially reduce the risk of later obesity; UK1990 growth references should be used over the age of 24 months; the WHO standards should be used from 2 weeks, to take account of the weight adjustments that occur in the first two weeks after birth; the feasibility of using WHO Growth Standards from 2-weeks of postnatal age to 24 months and existing UK1990 from 24 months onwards requires piloting and field-testing before being formally adopted and health professionals involved in child health are likely to require additional training and guidance on the use and interpretation of WHO Growth Standards and UK1990 references for monitoring growth in clinical practice; adoption and implementation of the charts should be preceded by a well-planned communications strategy ensuring that parents and carers receive clear and consistent advice.

A Growth Chart for International Use in Maternal and Child Health Care World Health Organization,1978 The measurement and interpretation of growth in childhood is the most widespread assessment instrument for individual and community health and nutrition status. Current use of growth charts were assessed on an international basis in 1972. Chart requirements were defined; a prototype chart was developed, tested, and evaluated for international use. The resulting growth chart is a simple, inexpensive, and easy-to-use means of monitoring child health and nutrition in local health services. Basic health data is organized and presented for use in 1) assessing current health status; 2) projecting growth trends; 3) defining levels of care. The visual character of the chart provides the health worker with a useful, educational instrument to understand growth and development and the consequences of inadequate diet and infectious diseases. It allows greater maternal responsibilities for child care. The guide to the use of growth charts presents a model chart which can be easily adapted to local needs.
