

Manual Del Arquitecto Descalzo

Mexico. Dirección General de Desarrollo Ecológico de los Asentamientos Humanos

Manual del arquitecto descalzo Johan van Lengen, 2020-08-10 En la antigua edad, los primeros arquitectos amasaban la tierra con sus pies para elaborar ladrillos, hoy en día esa imagen está bastante alejada de nuestra realidad. Dado el cambio constante del mundo, los materiales tradicionales de construcción se emplean con menos frecuencia y, por lo tanto, hay menos mano de obra con esos conocimientos. En este manual se ofrece una amplia gama de materiales y formas de construir una casa a partir de la combinación de técnicas tradicionales y modernas que contemplan el clima de las regiones donde se desea construir. Todo el texto está acompañado de dibujos que vuelven la información más amena y clara, lo que lo convierte en un libro para arquitectos, universitarios, autoridades de gobierno y técnicos, pero también para todo aquel que quiera construir su propia casa.

The Barefoot Architect Johan van Lengen, 2008 A former UN worker and prominent architect, Johan van Lengen has seen firsthand the desperate need for a greener approach to housing in impoverished tropical climates. This comprehensive book clearly explains every aspect of this endeavor, including design (siting, orientation, climate consideration), materials (sisal, cactus, bamboo, earth), and implementation. The author emphasizes throughout the book what is inexpensive and sustainable. Included are sections discussing urban planning, small-scale energy production, cleaning and storing drinking water, and dealing with septic waste, and all information is applied to three distinct tropical regions: humid areas, temperate areas, and desert climates. Hundreds of explanatory drawings by van Lengen allow even novice builders to get started.

The Green Imperative: Ecology and Ethics in Design and Architecture Victor Papanek, 2022-02-01 A fresh edition of the sustainable design pioneer Victor Papanek's classic and ever-relevant book examining the important role of design in combating climate change. Whether it's horror at the plastic littering the world's beaches or despair at the melting polar ice caps, the world is gradually waking up to the impending climate disaster. In The Green Imperative, Papanek argues for design that addresses these issues head-on. This means using materials that can be recycled and reused, no more pointless packaging, thinking about how products make us feel and engage all our senses, putting nature at the heart of design, working at a smaller scale, rejecting aesthetics for their own sake, and thinking before we buy. First published at the end of the twentieth century, this book offered a plethora of honest advice, clear examples, and withering critiques, laying out the flaws of and opportunities for the design world at that time. A quarter of a century on, Papanek's lucid prose has lost none of its verve, and the problems he highlights have only become more urgent, giving today's reader both a fascinating historical perspective on the issues at hand and a blueprint for how they might be solved.

The Art of Natural Building Joseph F. Kennedy,1999

Passive Building Design Narendra K. Bansal,Gerd Hauser,Gernot Minke,1994 Hardbound. The concepts, elements and design patterns of passive buildings are dealt with in this book. These patterns are a way to conserve energy in buildings or to provide more comfortable conditions inside the space through natural means. A systematic approach has been used in the presentation of the various concepts and elements of heating, cooling, combined heating and cooling, humidity control and daylighting. This has been achieved by describing the basic principles, their design aspects and performance, and illustrating with appropriate examples. The subject is covered in a compact yet comprehensive way. The information presented in the main text is supplemented by very useful appendices, which also include some case studies of passive buildings from all over the world.
