Necrópolis de Carmona Juan de Dios de la Rada y Delgado, 1885

Comisión de Antigüedades de la Real Academia de la Historia Jorge Maier, Jesús Salas, Real Academia de la Historia (Spain). Comisión de Antigüedades, 2000

Rome and Baetica : Urbanization in Southern Spain c.50 BC-AD 150 A. T. Fear, 1996-04-25 This book examines the development of urban units and their relationship to the adoption of Roman cultural forms in the province of Baetica (roughly modern Andalusia) in the Early Imperial period. Its starting point is a general examination of the notion of 'Romanization' followed by a discussion of whether a positivistic interpretation of this concept can be inferred from the development of various sorts of towns found in the province. The nature, implications, extent, and results of Vespasian's Latinitas in the Iberian peninsula are discussed in depth in this respect. The material remains of the province are also examined to see what light they can cast on the problem of 'Romanization'. Finally, the degree to which non-Roman cultural forms persisted in the province is discussed with the implications that this may have for the cultural dynamics of the region. The conclusions attempt to draw together the results of these analyses and suggest that Roman Imperialism is best seen through a model which envisages the creation of new synthetic cultural forms rather than through the traditional model of Romanization and resistance.

Prudentius, Spain, and Late Antique Christianity Paula Hershkowitz, 2017-01-05 This book sets Prudentius' martyr poetry within the religious, social, and visual contexts of late antique Spain. This original approach utilises the fields of history, archaeology, classical literature and art history, and the book is important for academics and more advanced students within these disciplines.

Hispaniae J. S. Richardson, John S. Richardson, 2004-07-08 This book traces the beginnings and the first 140 years of the Roman presence in Spain, showing how what began as a purely military commitment developed in addition into a range of civilian activities including taxation, jurisdiction and the founding of both Roman and native settlements. The author uses literary sources, the results of recent and earlier archaeology, numismatics, and epigraphic material to reveal the way in which patterns of administration were created, especially under the direction of the military commanders sent from Rome to the two Spanish provinciae. This is of major importance for understanding the way in which Roman power spread during this period, not only in Spain, but throughout the Mediterranean world.

DID ROMAN GOVERNMENT MATTER? THE STANDARD OF LIVING IN THE GUADALQUIVIR VALLEY, A.D. 300-700 (SPAIN, VISIGOTHS). Karen Eva Carr,1992 of the population and a tendency to abandon marginal land. These results are combined with other archaeological, epigraphic and literary evidence to show that there was an overall decline in most aspects of the standard of living between the fourth and the seventh centuries A.D. This decline can be directly related to the differences between the two governments. I conclude that on the whole Roman government was beneficial for the residents of the Guadalquivir valley.
