Should You? Howard Donal Peace III, 2016-12-07 A book of euphemisms. In today's complex society, people have so much to do and so feel that they are always in a rush. Their noses are buried in their electronics, and despite being so connected, everyone is further away from each other than ever before. Should You?, a new poetry collection by author Howard Donal Peace III, takes that complexity and conflicts as its inspiration, exploring the question that we all occasionally ask: why no one else seems to know how to drive when we are on the road.

Judging a Book by Its Cover Nicole Matthews, Nickianne Moody, 2007 This collection examines the role of book covers in the marketing of popular fiction across the twentieth century and beyond. How to Judge a Book by its Cover Kate Cuthbert, 2025-12-10 Combining both an industry and research focus, How to Judge a Book by its Cover not only judges books by their covers but provides a methodology for others to do the same. Despite book titles and book covers having been identified, defined and discussed as paratexts, beginning first with Gérard Genette and by many paratextual and publishing scholars since, there is currently no methodology or defined vocabulary for the analysis and discussion of their creation, the intent and effect of their structure, and their constituent elements. As these paratexts become further and further removed from their texts then, like texts, they can – and should – be studied, especially as literature is inextricably embedded in industrial and social currents. How to Judge a Book by its Cover looks more deeply at book covers and book titles, two paratexts that are of broad academic interest but crucial to the placement, marketing, and commerce of the publishing industry. Bringing together paratextual studies, publishing studies and media studies, visual design analysis, and the world of advertising, this work marries academic rigour with industry experience to first define the role that book covers and book titles play and then articulate a methodology for their analysis. By identifying intent behind book covers and book titles, defining the elements that may be achieved in this intent, and providing opportunities to measure their success, both scholars and industry professionals will have a clear and robust vocabulary in discussions of these key marketing paratexts. This book can be used for students and researchers who are interested in media studies, paratextual studies, publishing, internet studies, postcolonial studies, and popular fiction studies.

Should You Judge This Book by Its Cover? Julian Baggini, 2010-05-04 A philosopher takes a second look at sayings, proverbs, and bits of homespun wisdom: "Every society needs its guardian of good sense: Baggini is ours." --The Financial Times These short, stimulating, and entertaining capsules of philosophy delve into the familiar words that live in our consciousness yet are rarely examined. Should you really do as the Romans do when in Rome and practice what you preach? Is the grass always in fact greener on the other side of the fence, and is there ever smoke without fire? Is beauty always in the eye of the beholder and is it actually better to be safe than sorry? From the popular author of The Pig That Wants to Be Eaten, cofounder of The Philosophers' Magazine, and academic director of the Royal Institute of Philosophy, this is a witty, deeply thought-provoking reminder that we should never stop asking questions.
