Social Traps and the Problem of Trust Bo Rothstein,2005-10-06 A 'social trap' is a situation where individuals, groups or organisations are unable to cooperate owing to mutual distrust and lack of social capital, even where cooperation would benefit all. Examples include civil strife, pervasive corruption, ethnic discrimination, depletion of natural resources and misuse of social insurance systems. Much has been written attempting to explain the problem, but rather less material is available on how to escape it. In this book, Bo Rothstein explores how social capital and social trust are generated and what governments can do about it. He argues that it is the existence of universal and impartial political institutions together with public policies which enhance social and economic equality that creates social capital. By introducing the theory of collective memory into the discussion, Rothstein makes an empirical and theoretical claim for how universal institutions can be established.

Social Dilemmas Samuel S Komorita,2019-04-16 Emphasizing real-world examples, Komorita and Parks illustrate both the theoretical and the ecological relevance of social dilemmas, focusing on exchange theory to explain how conflicts are resolved. This book is appropriate for students of psychology, political science, and sociology.

Advances in Environmental Psychology A. Baum,J. E. Singer,Jerome L. Singer,2014-01-14 First published in 1982. It is not difficult to understand why interest in psychological aspects of energy production, consumption, and conservation has increased during the past decade. The stresses of living or working near power plants, the problems inherent in reducing fuel consumption, and the many applications of behavioral science to these issues have all received attention of late. This volume, the third in a series, is concerned with these issues-the ways in which psychology can contribute to understanding and helping to solve what has generally been termed an "energy crisis".

Paradoxical Effects of Social Behavior Andreas Diekmann,Anatol Rapoport,P. Mitter,1986 In the history of science paradoxes are not only amusing puzzles and challenges to the human mind but also driving forces of scientific development. The notion of paradox is intimately related to the notion of contradiction. Logical paradoxes allow for the derivation of contradictory propositions (e.g. Russell's set of all sets not being members of themselves or the ancient problem with propositions like I am lying 1), normative paradoxes deal with contradictions among equally well accepted normative postulates (Arrow's impossibility theorem, Sen's Impossibility of a Paretian Liberal) and factual paradoxes refer to conflicts between conventional opinion based on an accepted empirical theory and contradictory empirical evidence (e.g. the St. Petersburg paradox or the Allais paradox in decision theory<sup>2</sup>). Paradoxes, either logical, normative or factual, also contradict our intuitions. The counter-intuitive property which seems to be a common feature of all paradoxes plays an important part in the empirical social sciences, particularly in the old research tradition of scrutinizing the unintended consequences of purposive actions. Expectations based on naive theories ignoring interdependencies between individual actions are very often in conflict with surprising empirical evidence on collective results of social behavior. Examples are numerous reaching from panic situations, the individual struggle for status gains resulting in collective deprivation, the less than optimal supply of collective goods etc. to global problems of the armament race and mismanagement of common resources.

Psychology, Eighth Edition in Modules David G. Myers,2007 This modular version of Myers's full-length text, Psychology, reflects the author's research-supported belief that many students learn better using a text comprised of brief modules, as opposed standard-length chapters. Psychology, Eighth Edition, in Modules breaks down the 18 chapters of Psychology into 58 short modules, retaining that acclaimed text's captivating writing, superior pedagogy, and wealth of references to recent cutting-edge research. The modular version has its own extensive media and supplements package, with content organized to match its table of contents.

Toward a World of Peace Jeannette P. Maas, Robert A. C. Stewart, 1986 This book is a review of the 1986 United Nations International Year of Peace conducted at an international conference in Fiji. The theme of the conference was People Create Alternatives, and the issues of conflict resolution and avoiding global destruction were addressed. Specific topics discussed were: (1) Theories and Techniques of Conflict Resolution; (2) Nationalism vs. the World as Expanded Community; (3) Economic Factors in Relationship to Conflict; (4) Confronting the Nuclear Crisis; (5) Human Rights in the Developing World and Everywhere Else; (6) Peace Studies and Research; and (7) Super Power Rivalry in the Pacific Basin. Also included are proceedings from the following symposia: (1) The Rotary Center for World Understanding and Peace; (2) Globalizing Teacher Education: A Vehicle for Peace; (3) Developing Curricula for Peace Education in Secondary Schools; (4) Awakening the Sleeping Dragons; and (5) International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War. One of the richest elements of the conference was the interdisciplinary character of the participants. The book describes how the contributions of these many fields of study can aid in the search for a clearer definition of the problems that face the world and potential solutions to those problems.
