Modern Visual Poetry Willard Bohn, 2001 Far from frivolous playthings, modern visual poems represent serious experiments. Together with other members of the avant-garde, the visual poets sought to restructure the basic vision of reality that they inherited from their predecessors. This statement describes contemporary visual poets as well who, like their earlier colleagues, strive to say things that are more meaningful in ways that are more meaningful.--BOOK JACKET.

The Cambridge Introduction to Twentieth-Century American Poetry Christopher Beach, 2003-10-23 The Cambridge Introduction to Twentieth-Century American Poetry is designed to give readers a brief but thorough introduction to the various movements, schools, and groups of American poets in the twentieth century. It will help readers to understand and analyze modern and contemporary poems. The first part of the book deals with the transition from the nineteenth-century lyric to the modernist poem, focussing on the work of major modernists such as Robert Frost, T. S. Eliot, Ezra Pound, Wallace Stevens, Marianne Moore, and W. C. Williams. In the second half of the book, the focus is on groups such as the poets of the Harlem Renaissance, the New Critics, the Confessionals, and the Beats. In each chapter, discussions of the most important poems are placed in the larger context of literary, cultural, and social history.

The Modern Era. Alienation and Desperation in Ezra Pound's "In a Station of the Metro" and Edward Hopper's "Automat" Tim Ballschmiede, 2015-02-06 Seminar paper from the year 2014 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies - Literature, grade: 2,0, University of Duisburg-Essen (Fakultät Anglistik), course: American Literature, language: English, abstract: In the Modern period, the American lifestyle is growing and developing gradually. With the improvement of the railroad system, such as the use of steel rails instead of iron rails, everything in life is moving faster. Furthermore, America's need for workers combined with cheaper train and steam ship tickets have caused a new wave of mass immigration. Although life in America seems appealing, these positive aspects are overshadowed by hard times. Especially after the two World Wars, which caused a lot of pain and death, the world is fragmented and the devastation and alienation of people, both outer and inner devastation, has started to take place. Furthermore, through industrialization and mass production, human beings are in a continuous hurry and there is restlessness. Due to the fact that people always seem to be in a rush, life is chaotic and fragmented. The alienation and desperation of the individual in the Modern era can be seen in Edward Hopper's painting Automat, which was published in 1927, and in the poem "In a Station of the Metro" by Ezra Pound from 1916. Therefore, this term paper will illustrate the characteristics of the Modern Era, especially in terms of literature, by analyzing and comparing the painting and the poem.
