Artemis, Eve, and the Image of God Joseph A. Brennan, 2024-10-09 What has gone so terribly wrong in Ephesus that Paul feels compelled to write the longest marriage code in the New Testament? 1 Peter only has seven verses about marriage. Colossians only has two. Titus only has two. Why does Ephesians have thirteen? Did Paul wish to set in stone the nature of gender relationships for all of time? Was he trying to ensure the survival of the emerging church amidst harsh Hellenistic realities of hierarchic marriage? Or did he have something else in mind? This is a book about the Ephesians 5 marriage code, the goddess Artemis, Eve, and the image of God in the believer. It explores the adverse influence of Artemis upon the Ephesian believers' thought world, why Paul raises up Eve and Adam as the example of loving marriage (5:31), what Paul thought the image of God looked like in the believer, and why some Ephesian believers thought differently. Dr Brennan argues that the primary purpose behind Ephesians 5:21-33 was to evangelize non-believing Ephesian onlookers to an ideal of marriage in Christ's new kingdom that far surpassed their personal experience in the first-century Roman world, and that Artemis was getting in the way.

Economics and Climate Emergency Barry Gills,Jamie Morgan,2022-08-22 This book explores a series of connected themes focused on the role economics and other influential forms of theory and thinking have played in creating the current predicament and the scope for alternatives and how they might be framed. Thirty years have passed since the inception of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) and the beginning of policy on climate change. Thirty wasted years. To most politicians, long-term collective interest has been denominated in meaningless units of time, a never and forever that has continually delayed action. From complacency has come potential disaster, and we are now living in a time of climate emergency and ecological breakdown. The next decade is a pivotal period requiring fundamental change. But numerous impediments remain. Continual material, energy and economic growth on a planetary scale are manifestly impossible, and yet economic theory takes these as a given and political leadership and policy seem unwilling to accept brute reality. Instead, they offer a series of implausible commitments and pledges rooted in technofixes, without addressing the fundamental drivers of the problems the world faces. The edited volume explores the issues and offers a variety of ways to think through the problems at hand, from postgrowth, degrowth and social ecological economics to policy assemblage and transversalism. The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal Globalizations.

Advancing Culturally Responsive Research and Researchers Penny A. Pasque, e alexander, 2022-08-19 Advancing Culturally Responsive Research and Researchers: Qualitative, Quantitative, and Mixed Methods encourages readers to design and engage in methodologies and methods that place cultural relevancy at the center of inquiry. In doing so, it highlights the need to uplift voices and needs of people who have been historically marginalized in the environments that we both inhabit and engage in as part of knowledge construction. The scholars whose work is featured in this volume take up research from different paradigmatic, ontological, epistemological, axiological, and methodological approaches – yet, with adherence to centering cultural responsiveness in all research decisions. Each chapter seeks to extend understandings of social inequities, methodologies, and/or methods – and to contribute to meaningful and evolving social change through innovative and cutting-edge research strategies. While doing this work, the authors illustrate and highlight the importance of researcher positions and reflexivity in supporting the expansion of culturally responsive approaches; they also do so while considering global sociopolitical conditions of this moment in time. The contributions to this volume were initially presented at the first biennial Advanced Methods Institute in 2021. The Institute was hosted by QualLab in The Ohio State University's College of Education and Human Ecology and shared this volume's thematic focus. As a handbook, the volume can help faculty and advanced researchers with interest in doing culturally responsive projects to better understand frameworks, approaches, and considerations for doing so. It includes activities to support readers in developing said understandings.

Cover Letters in 120 Minutes Dana Toro, 2018-06-13 Ideal for candidates who are applying for internships, scholarships, fellowships in the social sciences, particularly public policy schools, and early-career jobs in development, and also useful for the broader social sciences, this book traces the career development of a single candidate over the years through internships, scholarships, fellowships, UN consulting positions, freelance-jobs and so on. The book functions on a simple principle of layering a simple message known as your core message through your application documents. The core message has to be articulated and described through three different documents, each of which has their unique function and serves its own purpose: the CV lists facts and achievements; the Statement of Purpose (SOP) describes your motivation behind those achievements, and your recommender validates your achievements and possibly outlines your career progression. The book will outline various examples of aligning one candidate's CV, cover letter and letters of recommendation through a career trajectory, capturing career-transitions: Scholarships, Fellowships, and UN Consultancy positions. Each stage is built on the earlier stage, and it really helps to look back and to craft a different narrative best suited for your needs at any given time. It's your story - do justice to it. Stage 1: Get that Public Policy scholarship that you have had your eye on for a while. Extensive research is vital to articulating your core message to impress the admissions committee. Triangulate the message artfully through your CV, SOP and LoR. Stage 2: The Law and Policy fellowship is an example of one of the most coveted fellowships which early-career aspirants can aspire to. Development consultancies like the Overseas Development Institute and Oxford Policy Management routinely seek to place early-career lawyers and economists as civil servants in Sub-saharan country governments. Stage 3: UN Consultancy positions and early career consulting positions in development also require analytically well-presented information through the CV and Cover letters for entry-level positions. The Core Message: Rule of 3 Applying for Scholarships Strategy for Scholarship Applications Strategy for CV writing Strategy: CV - Describing your first job and evolving responsibilities CV Building and CV Evolution: Examples Cover Letters for Scholarships Cover Letter 1 Cover Letter 2 Cover Letter 3: Wins the Emile-Boutmy Merit-Based Scholarship!
