Go With the Flow Eddie Lewis, 2019-04-22 Go With the Flow for Trumpet by Eddie Lewis includes twenty-one original flow study etudes tailored to be used with the Daily Routines book. With three etudes for each of the seven levels of the Daily Routine book, the Go With the Flow book begins with simple quarter-note and half-note flow studies limited in range to tuning note C. It progresses to advanced flow study etudes which cover a full professional range. The etudes systematically cover all twelve keys and a variety of time signatures. While the Go With the Flow book was originally intended to be used as a supplement to the more popular Daily Routines, it is also used by some trumpet players as a more musical alternative to a physical trumpet warm-up. Flow studies are a trumpet tradition rooted in the teaching of cornetist Herbert L. Clarke who taught them as moving long tones. They feature mostly step wise motion and are primarily slurred. The purpose of practicing flow studies is to develop greater control of the air-stream.

Proceedings of the 15th International Marine Design Conference Austin A. Kana, 2024-08-22 The 15th International Marine Design Conference (IMDC-2024) was organized by the Department of Maritime and Transport Technology, Delft University of Technology, and was hosted by the Netherlands Defence Materiel Organisation at the Marine Etablissement Amsterdam (MEA). The aim of the IMDC is to promote all aspects of marine design as an engineering discipline. The focus of IMDC-2024 is on the key design challenges and opportunities in the maritime field with special emphasis on the following themes. Ship design methodology issues such as: design spiral, systems engineering, set-based design, design optimisation, concurrent design, modular design, configuration based design, or 'fuzzy' design aspects. Novel marine design concepts, such as: hull form design, transport ships, service vessels, naval vessels, yachts and cruise ships, or specialized and complex vessels. Offshore design methodology, such as applications to: offshore wind turbines, semi-submersibles, floating fish farms, or floating cities. Influence of energy transition on maritime design, including both zero emission and high power and energy systems. Influence of unmanned and autonomous transition on maritime design. Influence of digital transition on maritime design, such as: digital shadows and twins, model-based systems engineering, AI, ML and big data. Influence of regulations on maritime design. Granular Flow Studies Through Kinetic Theory and Numerical Simulation Approaches Rongqing Dai, 1993 The investigations of three different topics of granular flows are reported in this thesis. (i) Second order solutions for granular simple shear flows are derived in the framework of granular kinetic theory. Compared to the first order solutions and the inconsistent second order solutions, the second order solutions of the present study provide better predictions of the numerical simulation results. (ii) Granular shear flows within narrow gaps and unbounded fields are studied by a molecular dynamics type discrete element simulation method. The effects of inelasticity and mean solids fraction on the distributions of granular temperatures, solids fractions and number densities of particle centers, and local mean velocities are examined. The slip velocities of bounded shear flows are calculated and the results are compared with the predictions of existing theories. (iii) Granular self-diffusion is investigated through both a kinetic theory and numerical simulation approaches by employing the time correlation function expression to determine the diffusion coefficient. The theoretical predictions agree very well with the simulation results for smooth particles at low concentrations, but at high concentrations the kinetic theory diffusion coefficients are lower than those determined in the computer simulations. The surface friction effect is examined numerically, and it is found that rough particles are less diffusive than smooth ones. --
