The Rhetoric of Topics and Forms Gianna Zocco, 2021-01-18 The fourth volume of the collected papers of the ICLA congress "The Many Languages of Comparative Literature" includes articles that study thematic and formal elements of literary texts. Although the question of prioritizing either the level of content or that of form has often provoked controversies, most contributions here treat them as internally connected. While theoretical considerations inform many of the readings, the main interest of most articles can be described as rhetorical (in the widest sense) – given that the ancient discipline of rhetoric did not only include the study of rhetorical figures and tropes such as metaphor, irony, or satire, but also that of topoi, which were originally viewed as the 'places' where certain arguments could be found, but later came to represent the arguments or intellectual themes themselves. Another feature shared by most of the articles is the tendency of 'undeclared thematology', which not only reflects the persistence of the charge of positivism, but also shows that most scholars prefer to locate themselves within more specific, often interdisciplinary fields of literary study. In this sense, this volume does not only prove the ongoing relevance of traditional fields such as rhetoric and thematology, but provides contributions to currently flourishing research areas, among them literary multilingualism, literature and emotions, and ecocriticism.

Naming and Mapping the Gods in the Ancient Mediterranean Thomas Galoppin, Elodie Guillon, Max Luaces, Asuman Lätzer-Lasar, Sylvain Lebreton, Fabio Porzia, Jörg Rüpke, Emiliano Rubens Urciuoli, Corinne Bonnet, 2022-12-31 Ancient religions are definitely complex systems of gods, which resist our understanding. Divine names provide fundamental keys to gain access to the multiples ways gods were conceived, characterized, and organized. Among the names given to the gods many of them refer to spaces: cities, landscapes, sanctuaries, houses, cosmic elements. They reflect mental maps which need to be explored in order to gain new knowledge on both the structure of the pantheons and the human agency in the cultic dimension. By considering the intersection between naming and mapping, this book opens up new perspectives on how tradition and innovation, appropriation and creation play a role in the making of polytheistic and monotheistic religions. Far from being confined to sanctuaries, in fact, gods dwell in human environments in multiple ways. They move into imaginary spaces and explore the cosmos. By proposing a new and interdisciplinary angle of approach, which involves texts, images, spatial and archaeological data, this book sheds light on ritual practices and representations of gods in the whole Mediterranean, from Italy to Mesopotamia, from Greece to North Africa and Egypt. Names and spaces enable to better define, differentiate, and connect gods.

History of Linguistics 2002 Eduardo Guimarães, Diana Luz Pessoa de Barros, 2007 This volume brings together a selection of revised papers, originally presented at ICHoLS IX (Sao Paulo/Compinas). The papers in the first section deal with studies ranging from the Latin model in post-Renaissance grammars to new scientific propositions at the turn of the 19th century; the second part carries articles devoted to a variety of topics in 19th and 20th century linguistics; and in the third section are united the papers based on plenary presentations, ranging from ancient Greek reflections upon language to developments in Brazilian linguistics beginning with the implantation of structuralist work by Joaquim Mattosa Camara (1904-1970) in the 1960s. In the concluding contribution, a survey of advances in the history of the language sciences is offered.

À propos de la théorie des champs sémantiques de Jost Trier Christina Herzog, 2010 Seminar paper de l'année 2010 dans le domaine Philologie Allemande - Sémiotique, Pragmatique, Sémantique, Université Toulouse II - Le Mirail, langue: Français, résumé 1 Introduction La sémantique étudie la relation entre signes et réalités et, en ce sens, la signification d'éléments langagiers. Une possibilité de soumettre le lexique à un ordre consiste en sa classification par champs sémantiques. L'objet d'étude du présent travail est le champ lexical qui a acquis une position importante dans le domaine de la sémantique structurelle et qui par la suite est devenu le concept du champ lexical. Le présent travail vise à faire ressortir en particulier la conception du champ lexical de Jost Trier (1894-1970). Afin de préparer le foyer de discussion à ce sujet, ce travail s'ouvre sur une clarification de la terminologie élémentaire. Les termes en question théorie des champs sémantique et analyse des champs lexicaux seront définis en tenant compte de l'état actuel de la recherche. L'idée fondamentale de la théorie des champs sémantiques est l'hypothèse que la signification des mots ne peut être saisie de manière isolée mais seulement en rapport avec d'autres significations. Par conséquent, on part du principe qu'il y a des ainsi-appelés champs lexicaux qui contiennent une entité mentale et dans lesquels des mots synonymes et en interaction entre eux puissent être intégrés. La signification de mots isolés résulte alors de leur position spécifique au sein du champ lexical. Par conséquent, l'homme parlant n'est pas en mesure de mémoriser la signification des mots de façon isolée mais il les enregistre dans des réseaux sémantiques. Les significations spécifiques d'une réalité sont alors déduites à partir des rapports qui se constituent sur la base des expériences individuelles ainsi que des conditions de vie socio-culturelles de l'homme. Certains représentants de la théorie des champs sémantiques pensent qu'à la base des rapports terminologiques se trouve une relation sé

The Theory and Practice of Translation in the Middle Ages Rosalynn Voaden, 2003 The interest of the writers of these essays in the intricacies and implications of translation in the Middle Ages, or of the translation of medieval texts in the modern period, has resulted in a diverse and intellectually stimulating volume. The papers in this volume, written in either English, French, or Spanish, approach translation from a wide variety of perspectives and offer a range of interpretations of the concept of translation. The volume contains essays ranging in time from the Anglo Saxon period to the present, and in topic from medieval recipe books to arguments in favour of women administering the sacrament. Languages studied include non-European languages as well as Latin and numerous European vernaculars as both source and target languages. As any translator or student of translation quickly becomes aware, it is impossible to divorce language from culture. All the contributors to this volume struggle with the complexities of translation as a cultural act, even when the focus would seem to be specifically linguistic. It is these complexities which lend the study of the theory and practice of translation in the Middle Ages its enduring fascination virtues of cross-disciplinary research, teaching and scholarship are above reproach. Conference organisers announce with pride that 'l'interdisciplinarité a porté ses fruits'; governments and universities sponsor ever-growing numbers of interdisciplinary research teams. Such activity is especially pertinent to eighteenth-century studies. The Republic of Letters inspired scholars, scientists, artists, and writers to engage in spirited, multilingual and long-term correspondence with colleagues throughout Europe. As many contributors to this timely and provocative volume argue, a certain kind of interdisciplinarity is required for any consideration of eighteenth-century topics. But what impact has this enthusiasm for interdisciplinarity had on our understanding of objects, monuments, texts, and events of the past? Born of an intense series of debates, this volume takes on current controversies with unflinching honesty. Contributors address questions of theory and practice. Does interdisciplinary investigation carry any meaningful challenge to the disciplines themselves, or are we merely trading one kind of evidence for another? What institutional constraints work against such research and teaching? Is interdisciplinarity a pressing preoccupation of scholars in France and the UK, as it is in the US? The introduction provides a critical history of interdisciplinarity and outlines the key tensions of university life as experienced by students and scholars in the US, the UK and France. Position papers provide state-of-the-field analyses - some invigorating or even utopian, others darkly brooding. Case studies present examples of contemporary work, showing what might happen when a literary scholar confronts a pornographer's battles, when an art historian takes on an 'undisciplined' object, or, perhaps most intriguing, when a practising attorney evaluates 'legal' approaches to literature.

The Interdisciplinary Century Julia V. Douthwaite, Mary Vidal, 2005 Judging by most contemporary accounts, the
