Teaching Figurative Language Through Poetry Katrina Williams, 2014-11-22 Allow your students to love poetry and figurative language! Paradox, irony, alliteration, metaphors, assonance, similes, and other forms of figurative language are strategically embedded to enhance poetry through engaging Common-Core aligned lessons. When figurative language and poetry are combined, analysis and comprehension begins.

Raining Cats and Dogs Cheryl Blair, 2015-01-01 This book is a dual language book featuring poems written with a focus on figurative language. Language elements include hyperbole, metaphors, similes, idioms, onomatopoeia, and personification. Written in both English and Spanish, this book is wonderful to not only teach the concepts of figurative language and poetry, but to assist English Language Learners by giving them the opportunity to see the words in their native language with the help of beautifully illustrated drawings.

Raining Cats and Dogs and Other Figurative Language Poems Mary Elizabeth Donley-slover, 2016-04-03 This figurative language poetry book was written to help children better understand the author's craft of writing. It teaches personification, hyperbole, similes, metaphors, and onomatopoeia. It was designed to be read in side by side English and/or Spanish while using the brilliantly colored illustrations as visual aids. Every teacher and parent should have this book, and check out the accompanying workbooks too.

Wallace Stevens: Poetry, Philosophy, and Figurative Language Kacper Bartczak, Jakub Mácha, 2018 The book explores the relations between Wallace Stevens' poetry and issues in general philosophy, philosophy of language, and figurativeness. The chapters move from the question of the relation between poetry and philosophy to investigating the role of metaphor in Stevens' poems.

Jeremiah Under the Shadow of Duham Joseph M. Henderson, 2019-11-14 Joe Henderson offers a critique of the assumption that poetic form in the book of Jeremiah indicates authenticity. This assumption undergirds Bernhard Duhm's reconstructions (1901) of the prophet's biography and the book's composition, the basic components of the dominant paradigm for twentieth-century Jeremiah scholarship. Henderson argues that Duhm's model is best understood as an attempt to bring the book into conformity with nineteenth-century systems of aesthetics, historiography, and theology-and with the Grafian reconstruction of the history of Israel's religion. The accord between these systems and Duhm's assumption about poetic form has less to do with their common grasp of the historical reality of Hebrew prophecy than with their common roots in the Romantic theory of prophetic and poetic inspiration-a theory forged by Robert Lowth in his exposition (1752) of the poetry he found in the prophetic books. Henderson contends that continued adherence to Duhm's foundational assumption has held back recent attempts to "move beyond Duhm" and overcome the fragmentation of the book entailed by his model. Rhetorical critics, who maintain that Jeremiah 2-10 is unified by the structural devices of the historical prophet, and redaction critics, who maintain that Jeremiah 11-20 is unified by the theological agenda of Deuteronomistic editors, both rely on the assumed authenticity of the poetry. Henderson observes that although these scholars have uncovered evidence of dramatic presentation in Jeremiah 2-20, they have failed to see that the dramatic nature of these chapters undermines their use for Duhm's historical-critical projects and reveals what actually unifies them-narrative progression.

ENGLISH LITERATURE ADVANCING THROUGH HISTORY 3 - The Seventeenth Century Petru

Golban, 2021-12-24 The present book is third in a series of works which aim to expose the complexity and essence, power and extent of the major periods, movements, trends, genres, authors, and literary texts in the history of English literature. Following this aim, the series will consist of monographs which cover the most important ages and experiences of English literary history, including Anglo-Saxon or Old English period, the Middle Ages, the Renaissance, the Restoration, neoclassicism, romanticism, Victorian Age, and the twentieth-century and contemporary literary backgrounds. The reader of these volumes will acquire the knowledge of literary terminology along with the theoretical and critical perspectives on certain texts and textual typology belonging to different periods, movements, trends, and genres. The reader will also learn about the characteristics and conventions of these literary periods and movements, trends and genres, main writers and major works, and the literary interaction and continuity of the given periods. Apart from an important amount of reference to literary practice, some chapters on these periods include information on their philosophy, criticism, worldview, values, or episteme, in the Foucauldian sense, which means that even though the condition of the creative writing remains as the main concern, it is balanced by a focus on the condition of thought as well as theoretical and critical writing during a particular period.
